Wilmington - A year in review - 2015

By LISA KENNEDY-COX
Correspondent
Lisa@YourTownCrier.com

WILMINGTON - As 2016 approaches, amid a backlash of terrorism, gun violence, and opiate related deaths, collectively, we hope for a better outcome.

The New Year is also a time of reflection. We remember last year's epic snow fall, huge ice dams and bitter cold, and hope this year's winter will not be so unforgiving.

While most everyone in the northeast was fairly socked in last winter, there were a few happenings worthy of mention, right here in Wilmington, in our own snow-covered back yards.

While last year's raging winter reluctantly turned to spring, many of the same issues in the Town surfaced and resurfaced, even with the cancellation of meetings due to dangerous weather conditions.

Kinder Morgan and Olin Chemical still loom large on the horizon for the coming year.

Concerns around where the carnival will be held on Fourth of July arose, along with the more pressing issues of our time. Terrorist attacks in Paris, San Bernadino, California, and elsewhere have presented a tremendous impact on our world, but at the same time, ushered in solidarity and strength among people from all countries.

Threat of violence hits home

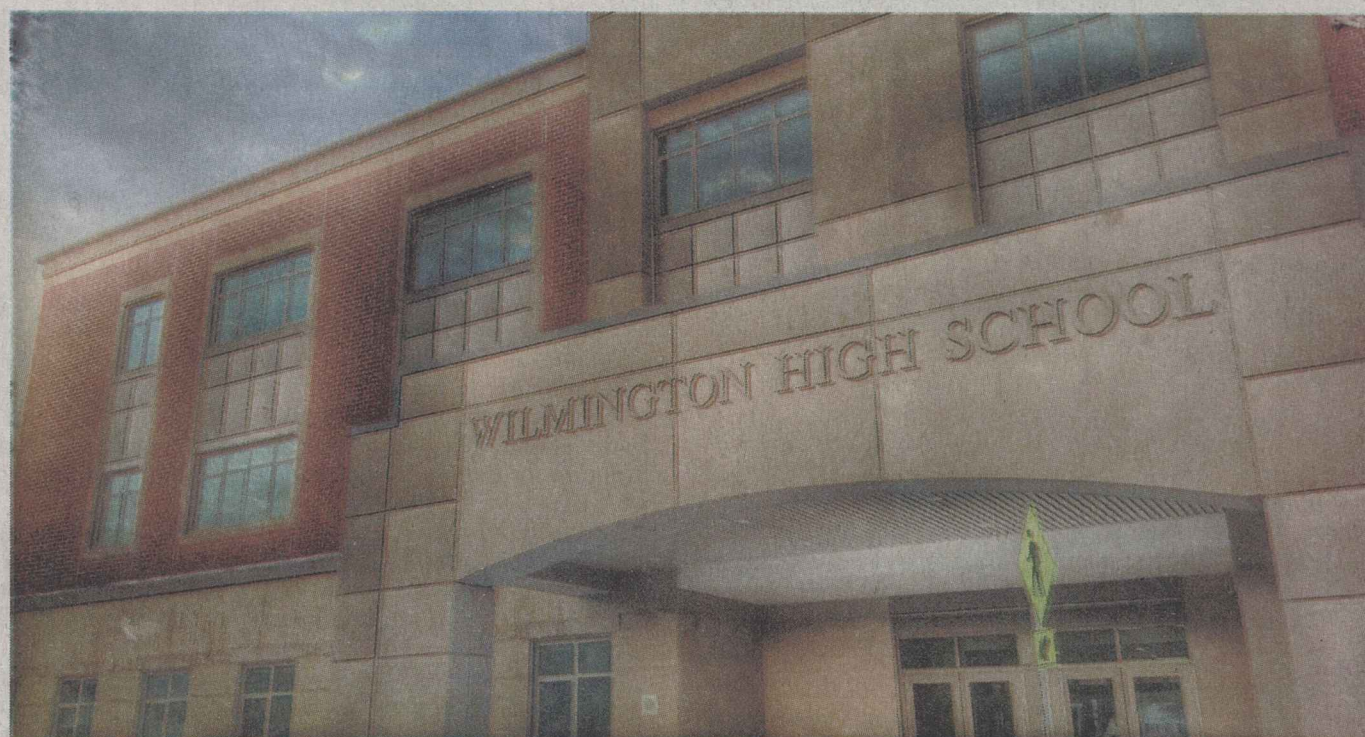

Wilmington itself was threatened with violence as a knife-wielding individual was apprehended by police officers at the Route 38 train station on January 28, 2015. Two Wilmington police officers were injured during the standoff when the suspect slashed tires and threatened civilians and officers with what was described in the report as a serrated, 'Spyderco' type of knife.

Wilmington Police Chief Michael Begonis praised the restraint employed by officers at a press conference outside the Public Safety Building shortly thereafter. The officers took control without the need to shoot and kill the suspect, putting them in a favorable light, considering the national attention on police shootings following the August, 2014 shooting of unarmed black teenager Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri.

On December 2, 2015, Wilmington police apprehended two men after a report that the men were sitting in a car in the Market Basket parking lot allegedly smoking marijuana. One of the men was in possession of a firearm. When police confronted the men, they ran off into the woods behind the plaza. After chasing the suspects on foot, one of the men was caught by police, while the other was arrested two days later and placed in custody. Again, Wilmington police showed exemplary professionalism.

New high school opens its doors

Back to the beginning of 2015, there were several triumphs among tragedies. The brand new, state-of-the-art

Wilmington High School officially opened its doors on February 24th.

Former Town Manager Michael Caira and former Superintendent Joanne Benton, both retired, had been the driving forces behind the initiative to build a new school.

"We went through some difficult times, but man oh man, it's worth it," said Caira speaking of the $81,536,115 total cost for the project, adding, "It was worth every single penny as you can see today," and joked about how some of the kids said the new school "looks like a mall." Caira concluded, "I truly want to thank all of you for your wonderful work exemplified by this beautiful building."

Again, as the anniversary of 9/11 approached, the new high school opened its doors to the community on September 10, 2015 for a Memorial Dedication Ceremony in commemoration of the victims of the tragic events that took place in our country on that day.

Prior to the commemoration, the time capsule laid in the cornerstone of the old Wilmington High School on September 10, 1950, the year that the school was originally constructed, was opened revealing its contents to the public.

Transrail looks to Olin site for operation

The Olin property

File Photo

Olin Chemical continues to be a thorn in the Town's side. In March, a letter to the Board of Selectmen was presented between Town Manager Jeffrey Hull and New England Transrail (NET) proposing NET's plan for the site, which is to purchase the property from Olin to construct a rail-to-truck transloading operation using 32 acres of the 50+ acre site. Items to be off-loaded to boxcars, tractor-trailer trucks, tanker cars potentially include plastic pellets and magnesium chloride.

Town Moderator race drives voter turnout

A chilly Saturday brought residents out on the April 25, 2015 election to vote for the candidates of their choice. The turnout was greater than expected with 2,370, out of 15,806 registered voters - 15 percent - cast their ballot.

Attorney Robert Peterson, Jr. garnered the most votes for Town Moderator against opponent, Attorney Leigh Martinson with 1296 to 1049.

Peterson fills the shoes of former Moderator James Stewart who handed over the gavel after holding the position for 30 years.

Incumbent Selectman Michael Champoux won a third term against candidate Kevin MacDonald, with 1954 votes to MacDonald's 330.

Peterson

Mary Jayne Byrnes and Manny Mulas were reelected to the School Committee, with Byrnes receiving 1,845 votes and Mulas receiving 1,542.

Leona Bombard was reelected to the Housing Authority with 1,821 votes.

James Gillis was reelected to the Regional Vocational School Committee with 1,934 votes.

Demolition of Whitefield School

The battle for keeping the Whitefield School was finally lost at the May 2, 2015 Annual Town Meeting. Sadly, it was voted that the building, which was considered historic by some, be demolished.

Historic Commission Chairperson Kathleen Black Reynolds, who felt that the building was salvageable, told the assembly, "We don't support demolition of public buildings," and, alluding to the Commission's budget and push-back from the Board, Reynolds added, "Given the limitations we had, we did the best we could."

Superintendent Weighs in on Athletic Complex

Broadrick Explains Ins and Outs of New Project

By BRENDAN FOLEY
News Correspondent
BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

BILLERICA- When he spoke to the Town Crier in early November about the possibility of the Shawsheen Tech replacing their worn down fields and track, new Superintendent-Director Tim Broadrick maintained that any such project would require diligent investigation and planning.

"If we plan it right, we can do it in a way that none of the taxpayers feel a major change in any given year," Broadrick said at the time. "We have to get the money right. We have to get the financing right. First things first, we need to do our due diligence."

As reported by the Crier, Broadrick and the Shawsheen Tech school committee believe they have it right and have approved a $7.4 million project to construct new athletic fields, tennis courts, and a track. The project would involve the construction of two turf fields and new bleachers.

"Five years ago, [previous Superintendent] Charlie Lyons started talking to the town managers about our athletic needs," Broadrick said. "There are no surprises here."

Each of the five towns pays for 10% of the Shawsheen Tech's capital, with the remainder divided up by what percentage of the student body represents that town. Billerica has the highest enrollment, with well over 600 students attending the school. Currently, 241 Wilmington residents are enrolled at the Shawsheen Tech, while Tewksbury is represented by 334 students.

Broadrick provided projected capital assessments for both Wilmington and Tewksbury. Both towns will see increases of 4.6 percent in FY17 (beginning in July), 7.7 percent in FY18, 8.6 percent in FY19, and decreases of .3 percent in FY20 and FY21.

For the current fiscal year, Wilmington was responsible for $163,445 of overall capital costs. Tewksbury was responsible for $239,588.

This translates to an additional $10,987 from Tewksbury during FY17. For Wilmington, this translates to an additional $7,495.

Broadrick and his predecessor placed a great deal of emphasis on maintaining the Shawsheen Tech campus, ensuring that the building

Zuccarro Part of History-Making Off-Shore Wind Farm Project

By SHERYL WALSH
Town Crier Correspondent
Sheryl@YourTownCrier.com

WILMINGTON - For the last five months, Steven Zuccaro has been part of a team installing the first ever US off-shore operational wind turbine farm. Zuccaro had been serving on the construction crew which set up five steel foundations and their supporting structures 20 miles off of the coast of Rhode Island. The assignment was a new and challenging adventure for the experienced pile-driver, welder, and rigger technician.

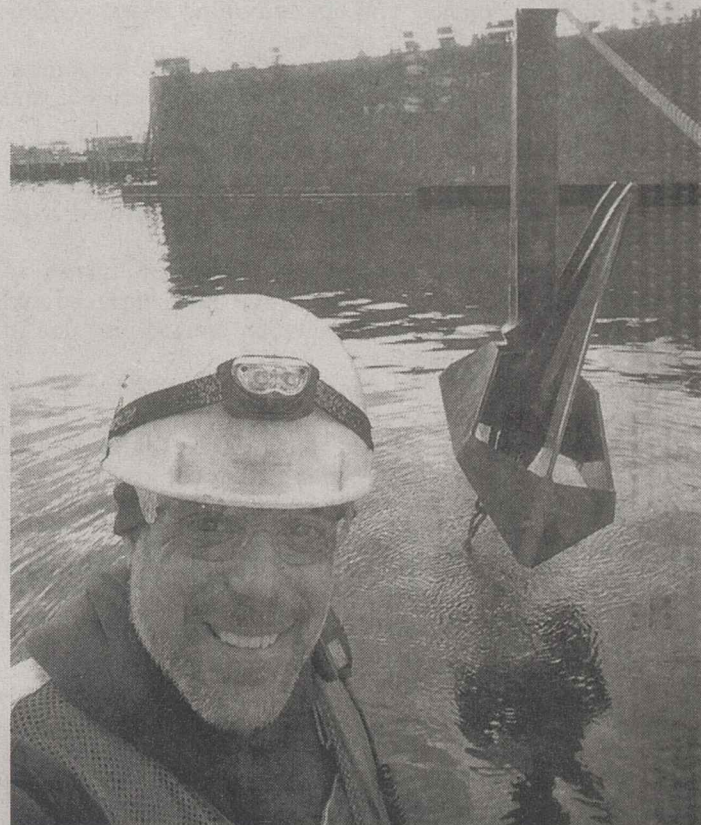

His days started with a 1-hour ferry "crew boat" commute out of Point Judith. His construction site was a series of platforms and barges. Some were permanently anchored and others floated more freely. And at the end of a 12-hour shift, he took the crew boat ride back.

"We worked around the clock," he explained. Shifts ran from 6 AM to 6 PM and then 6 PM until the next morning. He worked mainly nights. "But at least the commute was traffic free," he jokingly adds.

Deepwater Wind is the parent company for the project. According to their website, the 30- megawatt wind farm is expected to supply power to 17,200 Rhode Island homes. The power will go to Block Island and any not consumed by the island goes to the mainland.

The project is continuing now through several other stages. The five 270-foot turbines are being assembled. Underwater cable installation is scheduled for the spring of 2016, and erection of the wind turbines is set for the summer. Deepwater Wind expects to be generating power in the fourth quarter of 2016.

Other US off-shore wind farm proposals are in the making including one off of Martha's Vineyard. But this Block Island Wind Farm represents the real launch of this new American off-shore industry. Zuccaro is grateful he had the opportunity to be part of it all.

Steven Zuccaro recently completed a work assignment as part of the installation team for the first US off-shore wind turbine farm. Zuccaro is shown here at the final 'decking of the anchors' on the support barge before it left the Rhode Island wind farm waters. Decking the anchors refers to pulling them up and storing them for transport.

remains of high quality even after nearly a half-century of use. But because of this emphasis, the condition of the current athletic complex has been so overused that that grass cannot be grown on fields, the tracks are unusable, and the bleachers and fence are well beyond current safety codes.

"The problem with all of the ways that this stuff doesn't comply with current code, is that if we change anything, we have to change everything," Broadrick said. "Once we touch it, we have to comply with current codes. We have to replace it."

Lyons worked with Gale Engineering to develop a replacement complex and come up with a feasible plan. The plan now is to roll out the changes in three distinct phases.

The first phase will be the construction of the turf football field, turf baseball field, rebuilding the track, and constructing new spectator seats. This phase is estimated to cost $5.865 million.

The second phase will be the dismantling of the current tennis courts and the construction of two new grass fields on that land. This is estimated to cost $817,400.

The third phase will be the relocation of the softball fields so they no longer overlap in their outfields and risk collisions. This is estimated to cost $732,000.

No firm has been hired yet to oversee the construction. Broadrick informed the Crier that they will place the contract up for bid in accordance with state law.

"If we ran into a jam, we would eliminate a piece of the project," Broadrick said. "But I am very confident in what we have here. We've got it right, it's going to work."

While recent projects like the construction of the Wilmington High School or the Tewksbury Memorial High School required input and approval from citizens, as a regional district school the Shawsheen Tech school committee does not require this step.

"We're governed by the same laws and regulations that cover any regional school district, not just a vocational school system," Broadrick said. "By law, our school committee has that voting ability, and the information goes to the selectmen of the towns. If the selectmen had an issue, we would be addressing them. The voters, through their selectmen and their school committee members, have a voice."

The Tech school committee voted unanimously in favor of the project, and word from local officials has been positive following a selectmen meeting on December 15.

INHERITING AN IRA

Inheritors of IRAs must follow certain rules to make the most of these funds. In order to stretch the inheritance over their own lifetimes, non-spousal beneficiaries must start taking required minimum distributions (RMDs) the year after the owner died and pay taxes on them. Not taking the MRD costs a 50 percent penalty of what should have been taken out; otherwise, the account must be emptied within five year of the owner's death. Note: even Roth IRA beneficiaries must take RMDs, but they are tax-free.

The inherited IRA must be specially retitled with the decedent's name and the new owner's as beneficiary; if the IRA was split among beneficiaries, each new IRA must be properly retitled.

If any beneficiary is a nonperson (such as a charity), it's smart to pay that beneficiary before September 30 in the year following the death, or all inheritors will have to take out all funds within five years.

Make sure you inherited IRAs follow all the rules. Talk to the financial professionals at:

School Districts to Stock NARCAN

Wilmington and Tewksbury Schools Taking Action against Opiod-Induced Health Problems.

By BRENDAN FOLEY

News Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

TEWKSBURY - With a plague of narcotic addiction still spreading throughout Massachusetts, local school districts have begun taking action.

In recent school committee sessions, both Wilmington and Tewksbury school administrations approved plans to begin stocking naloxone (also known as Narcan). School health professionals will undergo training with naloxone so they will be ready should the need arise.

According to the Center for Disease Control (CDC) 44 people in the United States die every day from prescription painkillers. The number of prescription painkillers dispensed in the United States has quadrupled since 1999, despite little to no change in the number of Americans who report pain symptoms. More than 16,000 people died from overdoses in 2013 alone.

The CDC website states that nearly two million Americans "aged 12 or older, either abused or were dependent on opioids in 2013."

Tewksbury school nurse Elaine Walsh informed the school committee on Wednesday that there were 1008 confirmed fatal opioid overdoses in Massachusetts in 2014.

The term "opioid" refers to drugs ranging from heroin, to prescription items like OxyContin, fentanyl, hydrocodone, codeine, and methadone.

Naloxone, described as "a medication used to reverse the effects of opioids especially in overdose" was patented in 1961. According to documents provided by school physician Donald Miller, MD, naloxone has been used by emergency responders and physicians since the 1970s to combat the effects of an overdose.

Because naloxone cannot be used to achieve a chemical high, there is little to no incentive for the medication to be stolen and misused.

"It's a simple little box of magic," Walsh said in her presentation. "It can stop the opioid overdose. You go from near respiratory arrest to being wide awake again. It's safe, effective, and it has no potential for abuse."

Walsh stated that 133 school districts are already stocking naloxone.

"We need to be in the cutting edge," Walsh stated. "We need to be stocking it."

Both Wilmington and Tewksbury school committees approved the plan to begin stocking naloxone.

"Effective at the start of the new year (January 4th), school health offices will stock doses of Narcan," said Wilmington Superintendent Mary DeLai. "They were previously trained in the administration of the drug."

"I think this is a wonderful thing for our schools," said Kristen Polimeno, chairperson of the Tewksbury school committee.

Town Crier

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 23, 2015

Letters to the editor

'Twas the Night Before... (with apologies to Clement Moore)

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the town,
Not a resident was stirring, all had settled down.
And I was all snug in my chair with the Town Crier,
Reviewing how did the past winter transpire.

After the Super Bowl and I in my Patriots cap
Had just settled in for a short winter's nap.
And then in a twinkling I heard the weatherman say,
Better stay nestled in bed, more snow is on the way.

Away to the window I flew and uttered a bad word.
I looked around and hoped no one had heard.
The moon shining on two more feet of snow
Gave no luster to my snow blower buried below.

To the top of the porch; to the top of the wall.
The wind blew and snow continued to fall,
Soon let me know I had something to dread,
In spite of visions of Florida dancing in my head.

My eyes twinkled but I was not merry.
I went to the cupboard looking for the sherry.
My parka was hung by the door with care
In hopes that sunshine soon would be there.

When outside there arose such a clatter.
I sprang to the door to see what was the matter.
When what to my wondering eyes did appear,
But my neighbor plowing my driveway clear.

So as 2015 slowly fades out of sight,
Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night.

George R. Allan

T'ain't Christmas without something inane from Maine

Dear Fellow Solipsists,
Well, it's been a Goodyear, quite a dirigible ride.
Launching into our canard of sesquipedalian paronomasia, charientisms and fustian facetiae, we shall dispense with additional prolegomena.

Nancy, always ephetic of alopaths, encountered a theomaniac who turned out to be a thaumaturge. He proceeded to administer a disc fusion, quite successfully. Spring and summer found her considerably redidivius and continuing to recover.

Taking advantage of the magnificent meteorological conditions, we joined a mystagogue, a lucripetous saltimbanco and a gubbertush or two on the grounds of a local institution on the western shore of the harbor where we observed a naumachia of windjammers. We also traveled to Newagen to celebrate as a friend concluded his quadragenarial era.

The Lycopersicum esculentum, Compositae Pinnata, Pelargonium peltatum and Begoniaceae lloid all enjoyed the wonderful summer, performing beautifully on the deck and front porch. Nancy was especially pleased with the Ocimum basilicum, which grew prolifically in a window box.

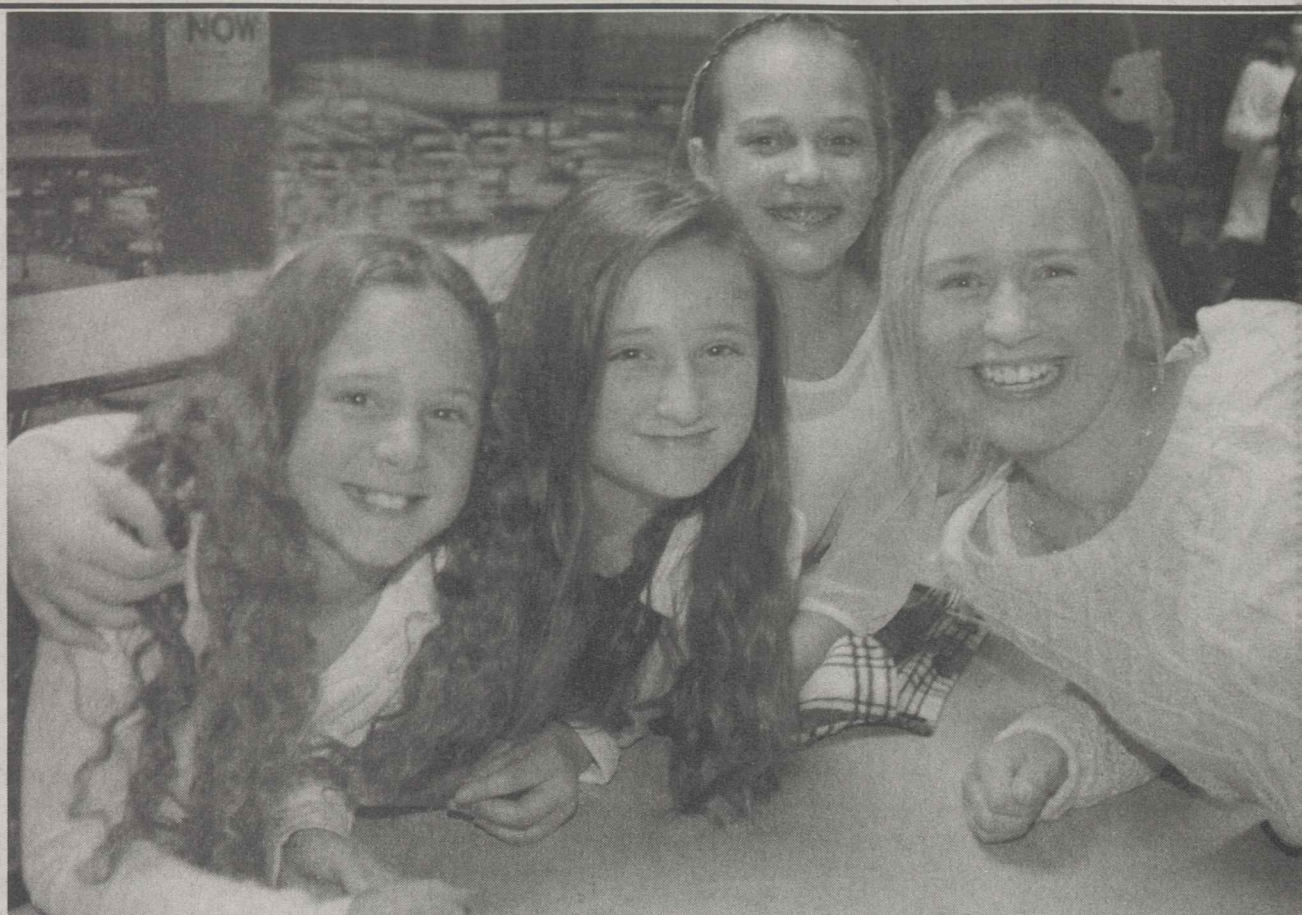

Showing his quotidian ergasiophobia, Larz entered the Everest World Napping Championship. However, he awoke at a crucial juncture and was disqualified.

In an umbriferous dingle, we chanced upon the Klesmer Grotto, an establishment of temulency run by zaftig Katherine and Shlomo, a vecordious cantabank and a grizley gongoozler. Katherine, a bellibone, accompanied him on the virginal.

Returning home, we encountered a most pathetic ululation from London, nearly scombroid in a most uliginous situation, mired in bathybius. She was rescued by Good Mark before the tide rose.

Our lucubration has become stymied by lethologica, and therefore must be deemed to have reached its apo-siopesis.

Let's Talk About Hearing

by Lolly Wigall

Senior Abuse

My office is a perfect setup. It is quiet. There are three chairs -- one for me, one for the client, and one for a family member or friend. There is no television playing, and no background music. There is a great lighting and we are all facing each other as we talk about hearing, hearing aids and the patient's needs and wants. In other words, there are no distractions. I like and respect my patients. I know a lot about them as they share their family struggles, and joys with me. Many patients I have known for almost thirty years. Some patients I first met as the family member sitting next to a parent.

This time of year I hear from patients that their family members expect them to now have 20/20 hearing. Patients tell me that family members "yell" at them if they miss part of a conversation. One woman asked to me to call her daughter and explain how hearing aids work. Her daughter was expecting her to hear from another room even when she was watching television.

Hearing aids are just like their name -- an aid, a help, some assistance. They are not labeled "new ears", or perfect hearing. Hearing aids are better technology than when I first entered college a number of years ago. But, they are not replacement ears. Hearing aids help a hard of hearing person hear sounds better. Wearing hearing aids do not give the wearer normal hearing.

This time of year with winter approaching and holidays coming faster than we want them to, people may experience stress. They are busy making preparations for a family time together. When there are a number of people in the same room, there can be multiple conversations. If a person is wearing hearing aids, the multiple conversations can be confusing. It can make processing the speech difficult even for people with normal hearing, and next to impossible for those with hearing aids.

Help the hard of hearing person by getting their attention before you talk to them. Look at them so they can use visual cues. Talk to them in the same room. And, be patient. You may be in their shoes in the future.

Letters to the editor

Decrease traffic on Butters Row bridge

Dear Editor,

I do not agree with the statement made by Jillian Williams that "The purpose of the (Butters Row) bridge is to provide a shortcut from the traffic in the center of Town". The purpose of the bridge is to allow the local residents an easy egress from their homes. Butters Row and Chestnut Street are two of the oldest and most beautiful streets in Town. It is a neighborhood of older houses with children and families who are now finding it difficult to get out of their driveways during peak commuter times. They don't want the extra traffic and I don't blame them. Widening the bridge would only cause more of a bottle-neck at the Chestnut St/ Rt 62 junction.

The Rt 62 and Rt 38 junction has been a failed intersection for sometime. Expensive and time consuming efforts by Rep. Miceli and a resident of Burlington Ave. to stop the large apartment complex on Rt 62 were denied by the Commonwealth. This construction only added to the problem. I have enormous sympathy for the home owners who have been plagued by increasing traffic in a residential neighborhood- especially by speeding commuters not willing to take the state roads (RT38&Rt62)

The goal should be to decrease the amount of traffic by the following possibilities:

- (1) Keep the bridge at one lane. Some people avoid it - thank-goodness!
- (2) Make the bridge one way at certain times
- (3) No left turn from Chestnut Street onto Rt 62 during commuter hours except for local residents -decals to identify them may be necessary.
- (4) Don't be in such a hurry. Help preserve a residential area.

Sincerely,
Betty M. Bigwood

Treats for Troops succeeds again

Dear Editor,

Thank you to everyone who donated their excess Halloween candy to Tewksbury's 6th annual Treats for Troops drive! This year, the candy was donated to our friends at the Veterans Northeast Outreach Center in Haverhill, MA.

This is a wonderful organization that provides the highest quality of services to assist, support and advocate for Veterans and their families.

Executive Director John

Ratka sent a letter thanking us for our donation.

"... Please know that your donation has directly benefited the Veterans in our care. It was a very popular addition in our hall! Any time, but especially the holidays, your thoughtfulness is much appreciated."

Paying generosity forward

On Wednesday, December 16th, a lady shopping in the Market Basket store in Wilmington gave my wife a Market Basket gift card. She could see that my wife would have many medical expenses. Fortunately we have Medicare and insurance, so the amount will be donated via the Senior Center to someone who needs it more than we do. I don't know the lady's name, but she deserves a "thank you."

Butters Row Bridge fine just as it is

The Burlington Avenue R.R. bridge is inadequate to handle our rush hour traffic. Outsiders seek back roads such as Butters Row and Chestnut Street to avoid the Center. Over 1,000 cars passing through our Town use this cut through. A wider bridge would bring even more traffic. The residents of Butters Row and Chestnut Street are clever enough to negotiate the bridge using the mirror and are content with the one-lane bridge. To replace this bridge would intensify traffic on two of the most historic roadways in Town.

Friends of Tim Ryan keep his spirit alive

The friends of the late Tim Ryan (USMC) arranged to have Santa make a special visit to two little boys' house after they lost their daddy this year. Their daddy was in the Army. What a great way to keep the memory of Tim alive. God Bless all of Tim's friends and a special thanks to Mama Cindy for arranging the visit.

Way to go Wilmington Post Office

Thumbs up to the hardworking people at Wilmington's Post Office. I'm constantly amazed at how quickly they get my letters and packages out. One employee in particular has been very kind and helpful, over the past few weeks, helping me figure out how to get packages and letters sent in the cheapest way possible. Thank you!

K9 search at TMHS

K-9 Officer Al Piccolo

TEWKSBURY - On December 16, 2015, the Tewksbury Police Department, in conjunction with other local police departments as well as the Middlesex Sheriff's Department, conducted a search of classrooms, lockers, and parking lots with canine search dogs.

"We do canine searches as part of our school safety plan in order to ensure that TMHS continues to be a safe learning environment for all students and staff. We are pleased to report that nothing was discovered of any concern," said TMHS Principal Kristen Vogel.

The Tewksbury Public Schools and the Tewksbury Police Department meets regularly to discuss ways to keep schools, students and staff safe. In addition, the TPS District Security Team meets to schedule drills of all sorts for the students and staff to practice.

Better Business Bureau offers

Holiday Travel Tips

The holidays are here again, and with the price of gas lower than it's been in years, it's likely more people will choose to hit the road this holiday season. If you're one of those travelers, Better Business Bureau (BBB) offers tips to help keep you safe and maybe save you some money.

Prepare a budget

Planning is important. Make a little room in your budget by allowing for unexpected occurrences and emergencies.

Get a tune-up

If your car is due for a tune-up, take it in before making that long haul. At the very least, check the car's fluid levels, wipers and tire pressure.

Be resourceful

Book hotel rooms in advance and consider exploring reputable money-saving sites. See if there are any good discount offers in the city you're visiting.

Take BBB with you

When you're away from home or in the midst of an emergency, it's hard to know which businesses - such as tow trucks and locksmiths - you can trust. The good news is that free BBB Business Reviews are optimized for smartphones. Now you can easily find businesses you can trust anytime you're on the go by visiting bbb.org.

Avoid unnecessary costs

Don't find yourself trapped by additional charges or fees. For example, avoid hotel room phones, which often carry hefty surcharges. When you're on the road, travel with a cooler and purchase snacks ahead of time. It's a lot cheaper than the hotel mini-fridge.

Create a car safety kit

Holiday driving often includes the threat of dangerous winter weather. Snow and ice can lead to accidents, car troubles, long delays and road closures. You can be ready for bad weather by creating your own safety kit. Basics for the kit include a blanket, flashlight with extra batteries, radio, first aid kit, jumper cables, non-perishable foods like granola bars and nuts, bottled water, an ice scraper and warm gloves. Having a cellphone charger for your car is also a good idea.

Get an early start and take your time

The best way to fight holiday traffic is to give yourself some extra time to make the trip, and don't speed. Also, if you're caught speeding by law enforcement, that adds travel time and can put a dent in your holiday budget.

Drop the distractions

A lot of tragic accidents take place when people are talking on their cellphone or sending text messages. When you're behind the wheel, don't text and drive. Let incoming calls go to voicemail or hand your cellphone to a passenger and let them take the call. Also, don't make or return calls - or send or read - text messages until you reach a safe spot off the road, such as a rest area or a gas station.

MICHAEL J. GRACIA, Proprietor

Wilmington - A year in review – 2015

Selectman Michael Newhouse, who was for demolition of the building, said, "Given the fact that the Board of Selectmen has tabled the issue, has given you some time. The building in its current condition has gone past its usable life."

The more than century-old structure was vacant, needed significant repairs, and removal of asbestos.

The Whitefield School was being used primarily for storage of documents. The school's vacancy ten years ago should have begun the process of preservation, however, an attempt to procure Community Preservation funding through the Community Preservation Act (CPA) and to have the building designated historic by the National Register of Historic Preservation by the Commission had been withheld by the Town Manager, said Reynolds.

The Commission also pursued the establishment of a Demolition Delay Bylaw, but the request was denied.

At $3,000,000 to $5,000,000, the cost of renovations would heavily outweigh the cost of demolition which was slated at $150,000.

Shriners accommodates Fourth

After 2014's Fourth of July hit several snags, Chief Michael Begonis and Chairman of the Fourth of July Committee Scott Garratt along with Fire Department Chief McClellan and other department heads worked diligently this year to ensure this year would be better than last year.

The 2014 festivities were nearly cancelled due to lack of accommodation as the new High School was still under construction and the Town Common does not adequately support a carnival and fireworks.

The Common was still used on the morning of the Fourth for 'Family Day' activities, but the Shriners graciously accommodated the festivities held at their facility on Fordham Road.

While 2014 Fourth festivities went on for only three days, there was sufficient backlash from nearby Wilmington residents and neighboring North Reading. In addition to the noise level, parking was a nightmare, keeping residents who attended the festivities stuck in the parking lot for over an hour. Other problems included the onslaught of Tropical Storm Arthur and the cancelling of the Wakefield Fourth of July celebration bringing those residents to Wilmington.

Again, the Committee reached out to the Shriners for 2015, and they agreed to hold the celebration at their facility.

Panhandling linked to opiod abuse

Residents expressed concern about a spate of panhandlers hanging out around Wilmington over the summer, reportedly at Silver Lake, the entrance to Market Basket and CVS and Walmart and Home Depot parking lots in Tewksbury. A likely assumption is the burgeoning heroin epidemic. The pain of withdrawal is the driving force for those struggling with the disease to take desperate measures.

On a positive note, measures to remediate the problem have been taken on the local and state level.

In October 2015, according to a Mass.gov press release, Governor Charlie Baker unveiled his plan to pass a bill limiting opiod prescriptions which data have proved to be precursors to heroin addiction.

Also, in October, Wilmington's St. Thomas Church was filled with residents attending the event entitled 'Navigating the Troubled Waters of Substance Abuse.'

The short film "If Only" about a high school senior who died of an overdose was shown.

The goal is to reduce the stigma and see the reality that addiction is a disease.

Also, a recent effort in Wilmington, spearheaded by resident Kendal Vaughan, 'Holiday Drive to Support Recovery' was brought before the Board of Selectmen on November 23rd to highlight that addicts "are in need of help not judgment." The effort included accepting donations for addicts in recovery and in need. The donation period extended from November 18th through December 18, 2015.

Collier playground opens

William Lavin, founder of Where Angels Play, came before the Board of Selectmen back in March of this year with a request to construct a playground at Silver Lake in honor of slain MIT officer Sean Collier. In September, Lavin's vision came to fruition.

Where Angels Play, is a non-profit that seeks to build joyful places to play and provide hope, recovery, and healing for individuals and communities affected by senseless violence and tragedy. It was founded after the Newtown, CT school shootings.

The playground design, in collaboration with the Collier family, includes multiple slides, climbing structures, and sun decks throughout reflecting Sean's personality and interests.

Collier's mother, Kelley Rogers who was present at the March Selectmen meeting, told the Board at that time, "Anyone who knew Sean knew that American flags were his favorite thing," adding, "We envision our children and grandchildren playing on this playground."

The Crier spoke with Collier's family. "It's something that we have been looking forward to as a positive way to remember Sean," said Collier's sister, Jennifer Lemmerman.

A ribbon cutting ceremony took place at the site of the playground at Silver Lake on Saturday September 26th.

Joy

Joy is a word that exemplifies the Christmas holiday, but it's also the name of a movie scheduled to open on Christmas Day. What makes this movie special is part of it was filmed in Wilmington.

The mid-February sky lent an eerie backdrop to the house being used for David O. Russell's film Joy. The film, starring Jennifer Lawrence, Bradley Cooper and Robert DeNiro, is about Joy Mangano, inventor, entrepreneur and organizer on the Home Shopping Network.

Dan Leduc, who owned and operated Leduc's Card & Gift in Wilmington, and now lives in Georgia, was born and raised in the house on 111 Federal St. The house was built around 1900.

Sean Collier's brother, Andy, speaks at the Collier Playground dedication at Silver Lake.

According to TIME Magazine, Mangano's is 'a rags to riches story' about a single mother of three who, in 1989, after much frustration with mopping floors, developed the Miracle Mop, a more viable and longer lasting option to the conventional mop.

Mangano later convinced QVC executives to let her pitch the mop herself in a TV appearance that reportedly led to 18,000 mops selling in 20 minutes, and ten years later, sold her company to the parent company of the Home Shopping Network.

Leduc, who moved to Georgia from Wilmington several years ago was excited about the film, but mostly remembers Wilmington fondly, telling the Crier, "I might live in Georgia, but whenever I talk about home, it's Wilmington."

The home at 111 Federal St. used in the filming of the movie, Joy, opening Christmas Day.

Former WHS Quarterback has turned into legit WR

O'Regan will be catching on at Amherst

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

At the end of his sophomore year of high school, James O'Regan faced a dilemma. As the star quarterback of the Wilmington High Football team, the young signal caller no doubt faced a bright future with the Wildcats, both under center as well as a defensive back, playing the game he loved with the friends and teammates he had grown up playing with.

But another opportunity was available to him, and he had a decision to make. He had the opportunity to attend Buckingham, Browne & Nichols, a prestigious private school in Cambridge, where he would have a chance to advance both his athletic and academic careers.

Even as a 16-year old sophomore, he knew what a career at BB&N could mean for him, so along with his parents Vicki and Ken, they made the decision to transfer out of Wilmington.

"It was a hard decision for me. I loved playing in Wilmington, with all my friends and for the coaches," O'Regan, who recently wrapped up an incredible senior season for BB&N said. "It was tough to leave. I did not want to leave, but it was a great opportunity and I had to do what was best for me."

"And the great thing was I also got great support from so many people in town. So many people just wanted what was best for me. Everyone was just so great, and seemed to understand this was the best decision for me."

Nearly two years later, it certainly appears that O'Regan made the right choice, having been selected to consecutive Independent School League (ISL) All-Star teams, not as a quarterback, but as a wide receiver making a very smooth transition to his new position.

Most recently he wrapped up a senior season where he put up some eye popping numbers at the receiver position, making 57 catches for 1,126 yards, to go along with 17 touchdowns, doing it all over the course of just an eight game ISL season.

That doesn't include his exploits on defense where he made 48 tackles, and added three interceptions from his defensive back position, along with his kicking duties where he kicked two field goals and added 23 extra points.

The tremendous season earned him Team MVP honors for the Knights, and more importantly it earned him tremendous recognition among many colleges who were looking to move the 6'3, 200-pound wideout into their lineup.

As the top receiver in the New England Preparatory Athletic School Council

Wilmington resident James O'Regan finished a monster season with the Buckingham Browne and Nichols Football team as a wide receiver and will take those talents to Amherst College next fall. (courtesy photo).

(NEPSAC) O'Regan got looks from Fordham, Georgetown, UNH, Dartmouth and Brown, among others.

Given a number of exciting choices, O'Regan was once again faced with a tough decision. But once again, it appears he has made the right one, accepting early decision admission last week to attend Division 3 Amherst College, where he will not only continue his football career, but will also continue his academic career at one of the finest universities in the entire country.

"We really started the recruiting process after my junior year, and I heard from a lot of schools, but Amherst just seemed like the best place for me," O'Regan said. "It has very high academics. It is just a great place and a great fit for me. I really just liked everything about it, from the location, to the academics and everything else. The football program is great and so are the coaches."

The coaches at Amherst apparently feel that O'Regan is pretty great as well, and with good reason, according to his coach at BB&N, Mike Willey. Willey has seen O'Regan grow from a promising player with talent when he arrived on campus, to an irreplaceable part of the offense and defense last season.

"He is obviously a very talented athlete, but he really worked on his craft. From day one, he was working on

Shawsheen Tech, Tewksbury and Wilmington

All three local teams compete in annual SOI Wrestling Tourney

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

WILMINGTON - Some of the best high school wrestling programs in the area, as well as the entire state descended upon the Shriner's Auditorium in Wilmington on Saturday, including the three local schools, each of whom had some outstanding individual performances during the annual Sons of Italy Wrestling tournament.

Shawsheen Tech, Tewksbury High and Wilmington High were all well represented at the tourney, with Shawsheen leading the way with a second place overall finish, scoring 137 points on the day, finishing behind only Dedham, who finished first overall with 184 points.

Shawsheen had three champions on the day, including Tom Strow of Wilmington at 138 pounds, to go along with three fourth place finishes.

Tewksbury meanwhile finished with 104.50 points, including three second place finishes and two fourths, while Wilmington had one third place finisher and another finish just out of the top four.

Shawsheen Tech, rounding out the rest of the field included: Winchester (131.50), Masconomet (130), North Andover (125.50), Danvers (109), Haverhill (107), Tewksbury (104.50), Mount Mansfield, Vermont (92), Dracut (69), Peabody (65), Windham, NH (40), Wilmington (30), Andover (27) and Gloucester (26).

SHAWSHEEN

For Shawsheen, its other winners along with Strow were Jake Ferri at 106 pounds and Joe Fusco at 220 pounds, who shocked Tewksbury's Broc Dokos in a thriller of a match between two outstanding wrestlers. Ferri, who beat Jack Darling of Masconomet by a score of 12-5 in the finals, was named Outstanding Lightweight Wrestler of the Tournament.

Finishing fourth for the Rams were Cody Sughrue of Tewksbury, who dropped a hard fought 12-11 decision to Dedham's Jake Sullinski and Vincent Foti, who suffered an 11-9 loss to North Andover's Connor Ford at 120 pounds. Billy Tamboli of Tewksbury lost by pin to Jacob Prescott of Haverhill at 160 pounds.

The second place overall finish pleased Shawsheen coach Mark Donovan, especially considering the Rams entered the meet somewhat short-handed.

"We got a great team effort," Donovan said. "We had a few guys out of our lineup, but like Bill Belichick says, its just next man up. The kids all work hard and there is a great camaraderie among the whole team. It was great to see kids like Ferri and Fusco and Strow do so well, but really everyone did well."

The win by Fusco, by pin at 3:55, over the nearly unbeatable Dokos might have been the most impressive win of the day for the Rams, considering the competition.

"He wrestled great," Donovan said. "He mirrored him perfectly, and shot when he had to, and did not burn himself out and then he hit the big home run when he had to."

Other wrestlers for Shawsheen included Nick Lavino of Tewksbury at 126 pounds, who went 1-2 on the day, Chance Harper of Wilmington (132) who went 0-2 and Bryan Domek of Wilmington (182), who also went 0-2.

TEWKSBURY

For Tewksbury, the top performers were Dokos at 220, along with Blake Hiltz at 145 and Dylan McAteer at 113, each of whom earned runner up status in their weight class. Braden Hiltz (138) and Pat Wild (182) each earned fourth place finishes, with Hiltz losing a heart-breaker at the buzzer by a score of 7-6 in his third place match.

Dokos was his usual dominant self for much of the day at 220 pounds, winning by pin in 57 seconds and 35 seconds in the quarterfinals and semi-finals, respectively, before losing to Fusco in the finals. Dokos had wrestled at 195 pounds last season, but has stepped up a weight class this season.

"It was not the outcome we were looking for of course, but Broc will bounce back from that," Tewksbury coach Steve O'Keefe said. "He's a strong kid. He can handle that weight class. It's probably better for him to wrestle there and that's where he will stay this year." McAteer and Blake Hiltz were also very impressive in working their way to the finals. McAteer won one match by pin and another by a 9-3 decision before dropping a tough 7-5 decision to Bryson McEachin of Winchester in the finals, while Hiltz won by pin and technical fall on his way to the finals before losing to Jack Anderson of Danvers by a score of 9-7.

"Dylan wrestled hard in the finals and that is all we are looking for at this point. We just want them to compete. If you compete like that, the breaks will start to go your way," O'Keefe said. "Blake is a hard working kid who loves the sport. He is wide eyed and his ears are wide open too. He wants to absorb as much as he can about the sport. He wrestles hard and the sky is the limit for him."

The 7-6 loss by Braden Hiltz at 145 was especially tough to take with the sophomore holding the lead until the final seconds before his opponent from Mount Mansfield, Vermont overtook him just before the buzzer to take the win.

"He got called for stalling and that cost him a point, and then the kid took him down for two and that was the difference," O'Keefe said. "That kid who beat him is a senior and a four time place finisher at the Vermont states, so he is no slouch. Braden wrestled tough. He made some young mistakes that he can correct and he will just keep getting better."

Other wrestlers who competed for Tewksbury included Shea Hiltz (132), Ryan Bain (170) Mike McInnis (285), each of whom went 1-2 on the day, along with Tim Rivers (126) who was 0-2 on the day.

O'Keefe is looking for the Redmen to continue to grow after their strong effort at the Sons of Italy.

"Overall, I thought everyone wrestled hard," O'Keefe said. "It is still early in the season, and I see improvement already. We have a great group of kids in the room."

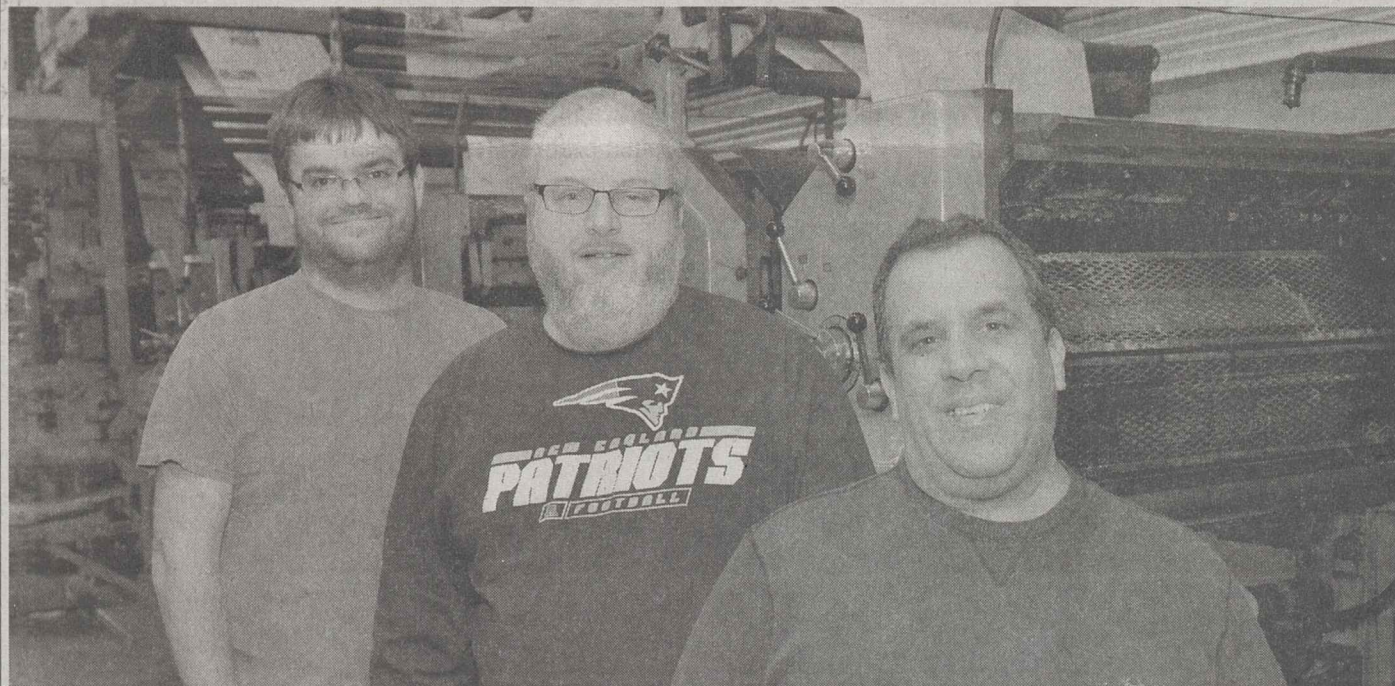

WILMINGTON

For Wilmington, which wrestled many of their more inexperienced wrestlers in the JV Tournament earlier in the day, Sam Jennings earned third place finish at 170 pounds, winning by major decision over Jody Perkins of Masco by a score of 13-1. in the consolation finals. He had defeated Tewksbury's Ryan Bain by a score of 4-0 in the consolation semi-finals.

The Wildcats Louie Larffarello, meanwhile, fell just short of finishing in the top four, losing in the consolation semi-finals to Roland Carasco of Haverhill.

Other wrestlers for Wilmington included Jimmy Carroll (195) and Cam Burke (152) each of whom went 1-2 on the day, along with Ethen Kemensky (113), Josh Fitzler (126), John Cox (132) and Tyler Ward, each of whom went 0-2.

Shawsheen's Strow crowned lone local champion

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON - With every point he earned during his finals match at the Sons of Italy Wrestling Tournament on Sunday, Shawsheen Tech sophomore Tom Strow could hear his teammates, crowded around the mat, roaring with excitement, urging him on to more and more points.

As it turned out there were plenty of points to cheer about for Strow, 13 of them in all, as the dynamic young wrestler from Wilmington fought his way to a 13-5 victory over CJ Cincotta of North Andover on his way to the tournament title. And when it was over, he was mobbed by his cheering teammates as his name was announced as tournament champion, his teammates seemingly equally thrilled as he was in his accomplishment.

The support was not lost on Strow, who was just as happy with the wins on the day of his teammate Jake Ferri at 106 pounds and Joe Fusco at 220 pounds as he was with his own.

"Sharing the win with my teammates is the best. It's more like a family than a team. It's part of what makes wrestling so special. It's only you out there, but as soon as you are off the mat, it is a family."

Strow certainly earned his way onto the podium at the Sons of Italy, battling through a tough weight class, and going 3-0 on the day, winning two matches by pin before his major decision victory over Cincotta in the finals.

After a bye in the first round, Strow started his day with a pin over Dedham's Laurent Joseph at 4:43 in the quarterfinals and following that up with a win in 4:28 over Michael Nuff of Danvers in 4:38 in the semi-finals. He then dominated Cincotta in the finals, rolling to leads of 4-0, 8-1 and 11-3 before securing the 13-5 win.

Shawsheen coach Mark Donovan could not have hoped for a more deserving winner than Strow.

"I always say that Jake Ferri is the hardest worker in our room, but Tom is right behind him. He's not the most technical guy, but he is strong and he works hard, and you know important I feel it is for the kids to work hard," Donovan said. "He won two matches here where I thought kids were better than him, and he won them because he outworked them and out toughed them. That's what we will be looking for from him for the rest of the season."

For Strow, who is no stranger to success after finishing fifth in the Division 1 North Sectionals last season, coming away with a win at the Sons of Italy was very special.

"It's amazing. It's my first win at a tournament since youth, and I think it is only my second or third time placing at a major tournament, so it is amazing," Strow said.

It is still early yet, but already Strow has shown signs that he could be on his way to a special season, with his win at the Sons of Italy, as well as his second place finish at the Mount Hope Tournament when the Rams opened their season last weekend.

"It feels great. I am really looking forward to the rest of the season, and hoping I can end up with more wins like this," Strow said.

Donovan will be looking for more of the same from Strow as well, and he knows that Strow's teammates will be there to support him every step of the way.

"This is our second family, and the kids support each other, so it is great to see one of them win," Donovan said. "They work hard together and it is great when it pays off for one of them with a big win like Tom had today. Hopefully he can have more of them.

Three youth wrestlers place in tournament

The Wilmington Youth Wrestling program recently just kicked off their season against the Burlington Red Devil Rumble squad.

There were over 300 wrestlers in attendance from all over New England. Each wrestler squares off with their opponent for a maximum of three, 1-minute rounds, and can wrestle up to four or five matches in their weight class depending on their standing after each match.

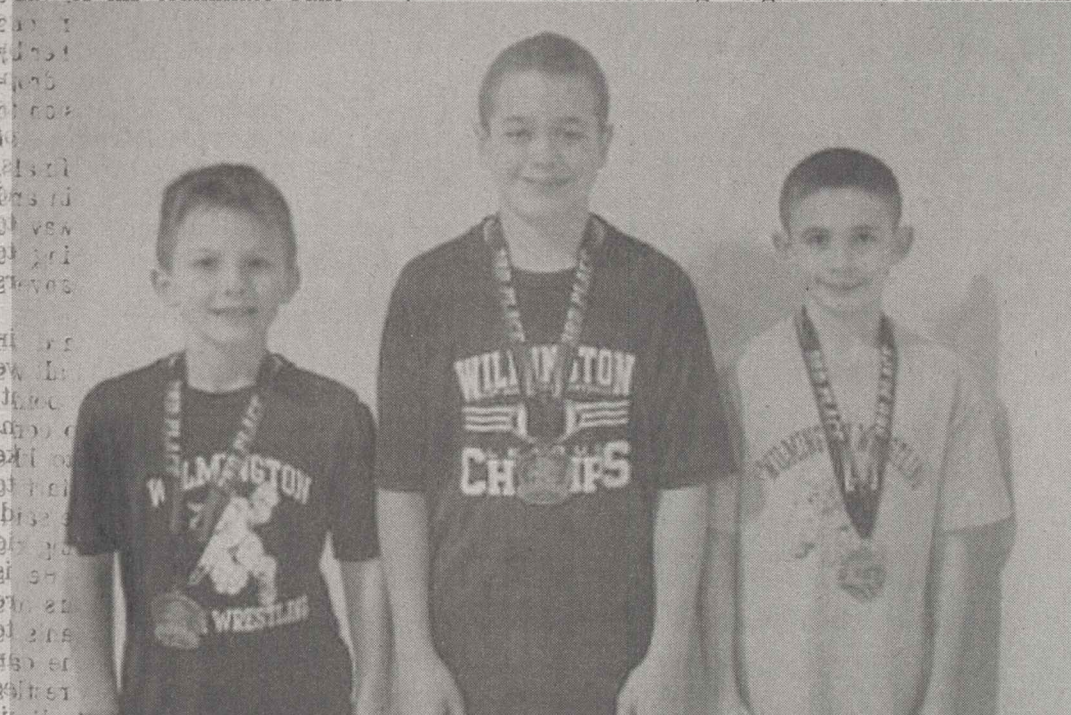

Wilmington had twelve wrestlers compete in this meet including: Jake Autzak, Julien Cella, Ryan Copson, Joe Ganley, Aaron Kreiter, David Lussiano, Kyle Marrone, Jason Marrone, Marcello Misuraca, Shane Penney, Manpreet Singh and Nick Vanella.

Of the 12 wrestlers, three of them medaled including: Julien Cella with a second place finish in the 70-74 pound bracket; Ryan Copson placed third in the 65-70 pound bracket; and Marcello Misuraca placed third in the 100-105 pound division.

Coach Ken Ganley praised the work of the team's captains Joe Ganley and Shane Penney, who competed very well as did Aaron Kreiter, and David Lussiano in their matches.

Besides Ganley, the team is coached by Tim Penney, Chris Vanella, Tom Fox and Brian Gallucci.

WHS Sports Round-Up

Boys Hockey team ices Masco; Girls Hockey, Hoop teams winless

By JAMIE POTE
& BRENDAN FOLEY

sports@yourtowncrier.com

The Wilmington High School Boys Hockey team defeated old rival Masconomet Regional, 5-2 on Monday night in the first round of the annual Haverhill Christmas Tournament. The win pushes the 'Cats to a 2-1 early season record, but more importantly puts the team into the tournament championship game with host Haverhill, which defeated Shawsheen Tech in a shoot-out, also in first round action on Monday.

"We didn't play well in the first period but we bounced back and played two real strong periods," said coach Steve Scanlon. "We won the tournament last year so we're looking to defend our title and we're facing Haverhill and it's been a few years since they have been in the finals."

Trailing 1-0, Wilmington scored the game's next four goals all in the second period as Danny Woods notched his first varsity tally with assists going to Tom Worob (his first varsity point) and Kyle Collins. That goal followed by tallies from Brian Cavanaugh and Woods again before Masco went on the power play and scored to make it 3-2. But Wilmington came right back immediately after that and made it a two-goal game as Josh Buske found the back of the net helping the Wildcats take a 4-2 lead into the locker room after the second period.

The third period was more of a defensive style game and Wilmington was able to secure the win as Buske scored an empty-netter with 32 seconds left.

Buske ended with two goals and one assist, Woods had two goals and Cavanaugh had the other. Eric Steeves and Worob picked up two assists each, while Ryan Barrett, Collins and Jared Aucoin had one each. Goalie Nick Russo made 19 stops to record his first varsity victory.

On Saturday, Wilmington defeated Middlesex League Liberty Division foe Lexington, 2-1. The game was scoreless after the first period before Cavanaugh scored on assists from Joe Kelley and Shawn Giroux. Lexington came back and tied the game up before senior Cole Walsh scored on the opening shift of the third period as he was set up by Barrett and Nate DiMeco.

"It was a real competitive game and I think there were only three penalties in the entire game," said Scanlon. "I thought we outplayed them in the third period, and that was big after our tough third period against Woburn (three days before)."

Ryan St. Jean made 19 saves to record his first win as a varsity goaltender.

Last Wednesday, the team opened its season against Woburn, one of the state's best teams. The Tanners are coming off its Super-8 appearance and return most of that line-up from last year. Wilmington hung on through two periods as the game was tied up at 2-2, before Woburn scored five goals in the third period for the 7-2 win.

"We were holding our own through the two periods but they were clearly the better team," said Scanlon. "I think our kids were exhausted in the third period, especially our goalie. Woburn has that other gear. But I thought we battled. When we were down 4-2, we had a breakaway and the puck nailed the post. Had that gone in, who knows it could have been a different game. But Woburn is very deep, they are quick, they have a top of skill and they are a tough, tough team."

GIRLS HOCKEY

A late in the game collapse resulted in the second loss in a row for the Wilmington High School Varsity Girls Hockey team. On Saturday night the Wildcats fell victim to Middlesex League Liberty Division cross-over foe Lexington, 8-2, held at the Ristuccia Arena. Lexington scored six goals in the third period to break a 2-2 tie.

With the loss, the Wildcats fall to 0-2-1 for the season. The Lexington game followed a difficult game against the undefeated, Division 1 Woburn, which Wilmington lost 7-2.

"[Lexington] was just a better team," said Wilmington head coach Michael Gautreau. "The girls fought hard, but when you play a better team it's real tough."

For the first half of the game, the Wildcats seemed to be holding their own against Lexington. The Minutemen got on the scoreboard early in the first period, but Wilmington answered with a goal with 5:12 remaining in the first period. The Wildcats took advantage of a power-play stemming from a Lexington penalty against sophomore Olivia Wingate and attacked the underdefended Lexington net with everything they had. Wingate would score, tying up the game.

Lexington scored again with 1:25 remaining in the first period, only for Wilmington junior captain Samantha Grasso to tie the game up at 2-2 seconds later which stood through the second period break.

An early penalty against Wilmington left the Wildcats scrambling during the opening minutes of the second period, but strong defense and goaltending kept the team afloat. The game remained tied for much of the second period, despite Lexington's willingness and eagerness to shoot the puck from almost every conceivable inch of the ice.

Strong work by freshman April Haines in net and sophomore Jilliam Miele on defense helped stem the tide of the Lexington offense.

But with just over five minutes remaining in the second period, Lexington began finding holes in the Wildcat defense and would not stop. Lexington scored with 5:21 remaining in the period, then again with 4:25 remaining.

Lexington would score another four times in the third period while Wilmington's offense faltered. This, despite Lexington accumulating four penalties in the third period alone.

Despite all-out offensive efforts by the likes of Wingate and sophomore Danielle Silva, or good blue-line shots by sophomore Lauren D'Angelo, nothing the Wildcats tried seemed to work.

It did not help that Lexington, like other recent opponents, knew to cover Wingate and stymied her during every offensive push.

"In the future, the other girls will have to learn how to get open," Gautreau said. "Good players know how to get open and how to get to the puck."

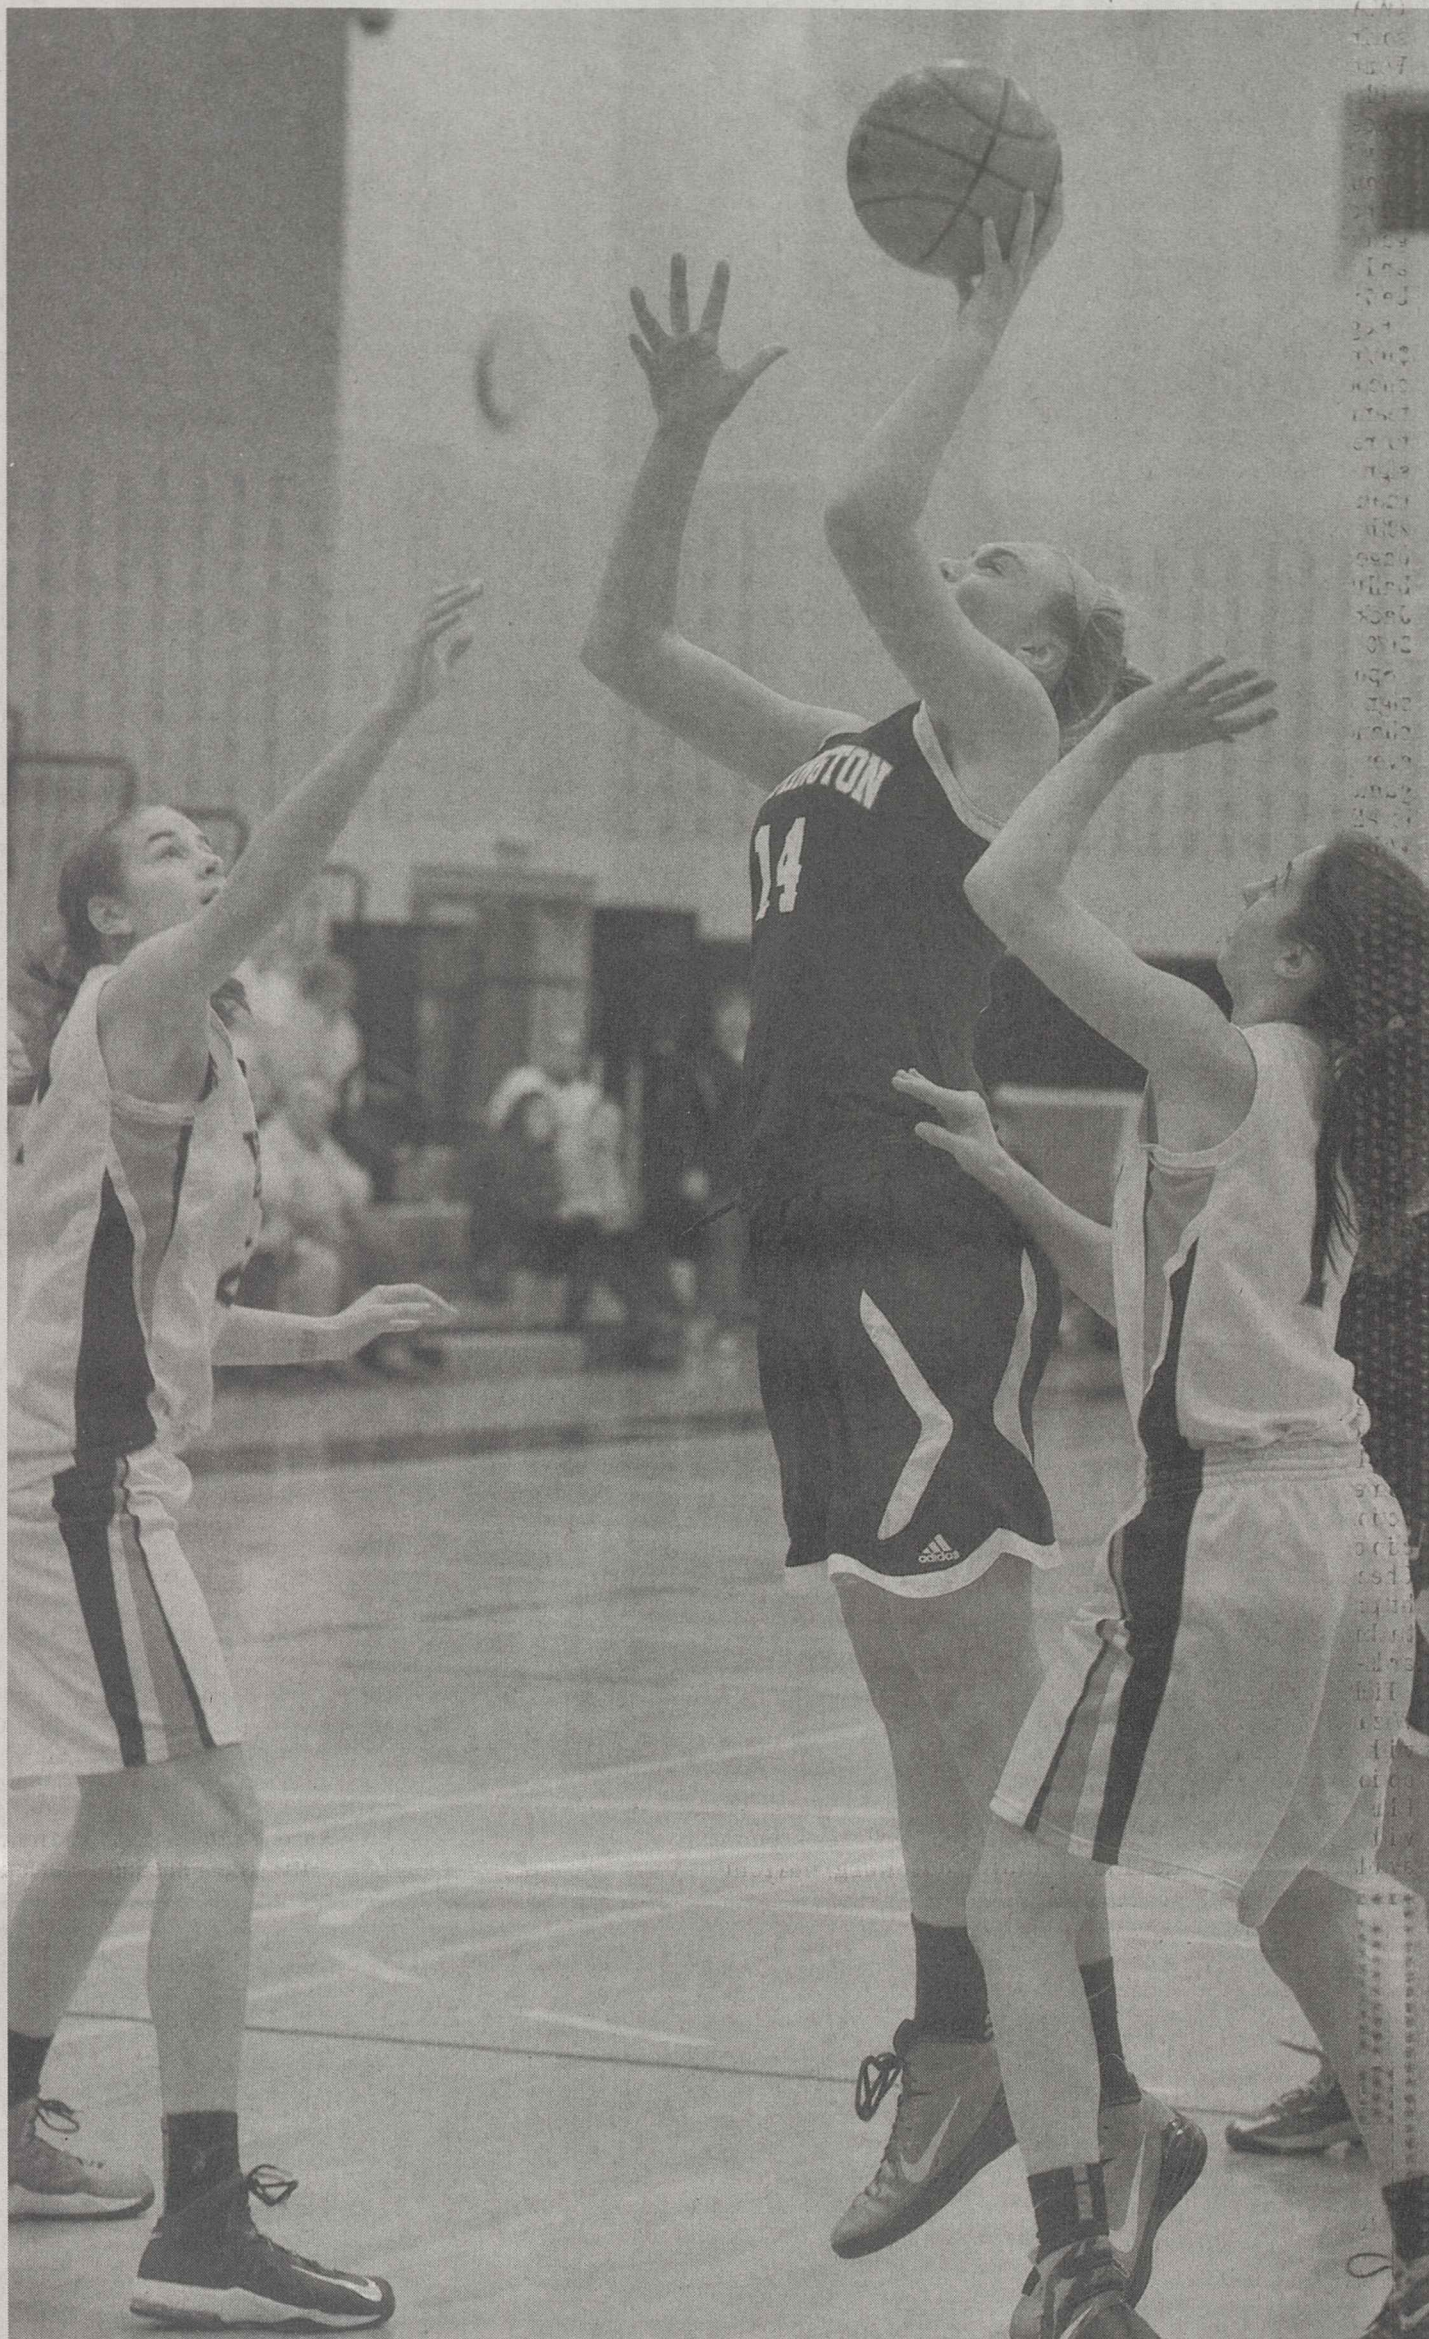

The game represented another heroic effort by freshman goalie April Haines, who continues to do impressive work in her first ever season playing ice hockey. Haines was shelled throughout the game, facing well over 30 shots throughout the game. In comparison, the Lexington goalie faced only 16 shots on net through all three periods of play.

"April made some great saves," Gautreau said. "But it's tough when we're so young. You can just see the skill level. They had two, even three really solid lines and I'm rolling with just eight girls."

After two tough losses, Gautreau can take pride in the attitude and persistence of the players on his team.

"They didn't give up, and that's key," Gautreau said. "There was no complaining on the bench. They fought until the end."

Now comes the difficult part of trying to build off of the mistakes and weak spots revealed by the last two games. There is still much hockey to be played this season, and Gautreau believes the team needs to work together to be strong on every front.

"We're going to work a little on position," he said. "We run around with the puck a little too much in our own end, and we are always giving up the puck in the neutral zone and it is killing us. That's how the other team is getting the majority of their shots."

Wilmington was back in action on Wednesday against Belmont with results not known as of presstime.

Following a long holiday break, the Lady Wildcats will be back at it with a home game on December 30 at 8 pm.

BOYS/GIRLS HOOP

The Wilmington High School Boys Basketball team has started out 0-3 on the season. After losing to Woburn in the season opener last week, the Wildcats have dropped games against Lexington, 58-50, then Belmont 89-50, on Monday night.

"Belmont is very good and they got up on us early in the game," said coach Joe Maiella. "Their pressure got to us. They started to make some three-pointers so we had to get out of the zone (defense). They are a very good team. Now we just have to bounce back.

We need to forget about this game and go get Melrose (on Wednesday night). That's all we can do."

Mike Cocca led the way with nine points followed by Matt Woods and Danny Gracia with seven each.

In the loss to Lexington, the 'Cats trailed by a point with 90 seconds to go, before falling by eight.

"We competed and we were right there," said Maiella. "We didn't get a call, then after that we missed a shot and Lexington hit some free throws and then we had to start fouling them."

Graham Smith led the way with 15 points followed by Matt Spurr and Joe Gaudreau with nine each and Woods with eight.

The Boys faced Melrose on Wednesday with results not known as of presstime before coming home for the annual Christmas Tournament on Monday and Tuesday. In the first round action, it'll be Tewksbury-Arlington Catholic at 5:15, followed by Wilmington and Sharon at 7. On Tuesday the two losing teams from Monday square off at 5:15 and the two winners square off at 7.

The Girls team is also off to an 0-3 start. On Friday the 'Cats were defeated by a very good Lexington team, 56-36, before falling to Belmont, 54-42.

"The entire team played hard and they left everything on the floor," said coach Brie Karow. "Belmont converted on some transition baskets and lay-ups late in the game, then we had to foul and they hit some free throws. But we were in it. It was an eight point game for a while and I thought everyone played well. I have no questioned the effort one bit. We still fought hard until the very end."

Offensively, Christina Woods led the way with nine points, followed by Erica Pudvelis with eight and Caroline Anderson and Kaila Bavin with seven each.

"We're spreading the offense out and getting contributions from a lot of different people, including players coming off the bench," said Karow. "I know we're 0-3 but I don't think we're playing like an 0-3 team. The girls are not hanging their heads and they continue to have each other's backs. The chemistry remains great despite the tough start."

BOYS TRACK

Last Tuesday, the WHS Boys Indoor Track-and-Field team defeated Melrose, 46-30 in the season's opening meet. Wilmington had five first place, five second places and five third places in the meet, and a total of 15 different athletes scoring.

"The senior leadership won this meet for the team," said coach Mike Kinney. "Our senior leadership's experience shined through, and helped to beat a team with a strong group of distance runners."

Taking first places included: Brad Aldrich in the 300 (43.42), Chris Patrone in the high jump (5-7), Kyle Nelson in the shot put (43-0), Devin Langenfeld in the 55-meter hurdles (9.49) and Evan Sperlinga in the 55-meter dash (7.05).

Taking second places were: Dave Bell in the 600 (1:40.60), Tom Hogan in the 300 (43.68), Conor Bailey in the two mile (11:22), Steve Langenfeld in the shot put (37-6) and Tyler Von Kahle in the 55-meter hurdles (10.36).

Finally for third places were: Jesse Valente in the mile (5:28), Ray Russell in the 1,000 (3:06.83), Justin Leger in the 600 (1:41.06), Steve Godfrey in the 300 (43.76) and Jason Dunn in the two mile (11:33).

On Saturday, several members of the team took part in the Winter Festival Meet held at the Reggie Lewis Center. Sperlinga had the top performance as he was third (out of 173 kids) in the 55-meter dash with a time of 6.87 seconds, while, Devin Langenfeld finished 12th in the hurdles at a time of 8.77 and both of those times are good enough to qualify for the state meet. Langenfeld also placed 12th in the long jump (18-5). The 4x200 relay team of Godfrey, Langenfeld, Aldrich and Sperlinga finished seventh with a combined time of 1:38.77 and finally Nelson was 9th in the shot put (40-3).

Wildcat Bantam 2 Youth Hockey team splits pair of games

Entering the weekend on a bit of a losing streak, the Wilmington Youth Hockey Association Bantam 2 team looked to turn things around with back to back games on Saturday and Sunday evening.

Playing with a short bench, the Wildcats had only six forwards and four defensemen in front of goalie Max Churchill. Shane Mercuri and Ryan Packer started on defense, while Max Shapiro centered Joseph Hartzell and Cameron Banks. In the first period, the team came out making plays and moving the puck, but couldn't crack the Natick goalie.

Halfway through the period, Natick jumped to a 1-0 lead, and Wilmington was back on its heels with two consecutive penalties to kill off. The PK squad was ready and held the deficit to one through the end of the first. In the second period, Anthony Bowker picked up the equalizer for the Wildcats. With sustained pressure by linemates Brendan Kelley and Colin Walsh, Bowker picked up a rebound and hammered it in at the 7:20 mark.

After killing another penalty, Wilmington took the lead with less than a minute remaining. Shane Mercuri skated deep into the offensive zone while Joseph Hartzell covered at the blue line and Mercuri scored the go ahead goal.

In the third period, the Wildcats were again in the penalty box, but Max Shapiro took advantage of an opening in Natick's attack and scored what proved to be the game winner on a shorthanded rush. A late goal by Natick was not enough and Wilmington held on to the 3-2 win.

On Sunday, the team traveled to Concord for a rescheduled match against Acton-Boxboro. Mark Miraglia returned to the lineup along with Jake Fox, and the team came out strong. Just under two minutes into the game, Cameron Banks scored with an assist from Joseph Hartzell.

The game was called tight by the officials with several penalties to both teams. Eventually, Shane Mercuri scored for Wilmington on the power play for a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period. Acton-Boxboro rallied in the second, scoring first on their own power play, and then again just moments later off the ensuing faceoff at center ice.

A late second period goal gave A-B the lead, which they extended in the third period by adding another power play goal plus a shorthanded tally. Cameron Banks second goal of the game as the clock ticked down set the final score at 5-3 in favor of Acton-Boxboro.

Lady Rams rout Greater Lawrence on the parquet floor

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
Things could not be going much better for the Shawsheen Tech Girls Basketball team, with the Lady Rams off to a 2-0 start on the young season, having beaten Notre Dame Academy 45-42 last Tuesday in their season opener and following that up with a rout of Greater Lawrence on Friday.

As well as they are playing, Shawsheen coach Aimee Sueltenfuss knows there is still plenty of room for improvement here in the young season and beyond, as demonstrated in what turned out to be their narrow win over Notre Dame.

"We are slowly starting to come together as a team and hopefully this will help us to get a lead and stay ahead in games," Sueltenfuss said. "We blew a 16 point lead against Notre Dame with the loss of Holly DeCoursey to an injury and we need to figure out ways around that happening when we are faced with adversity."

In that win over NDA the Lady Rams got several outstanding efforts, led by junior center Tara Mickle, who had nine points and 17 rebounds on the night, helping the Lady Rams overcome a somewhat sluggish start.

"Mickle has so much ability and we really enjoyed watching her in this game," Sueltenfuss said. "She had foul trouble early on which could have derailed her in the game and she picked herself up and was a huge force on the court without DeCoursey."

Despite the win and Mickle's super performance, Sueltenfuss felt there were still some kinks to work out. "You could clearly tell this was our first game and that we were coming out of the gates without our two leaders (last year's captains Malorie Kiehl and Emily Irwin.) We struggled with fouls in the first half and then DeCoursey got hurt and did not return after halfway through the second quarter," Sueltenfuss said.

"At one point I told the team let's get out of here with the win and we can worry about all these things we need to work on later and that is exactly what we did. Luckily Holly was back by the end of the week."

DeCoursey most certainly was back in the Lady Rams next game, pouring in a game high 21 points to lead Shawsheen to a 58-26 win over Greater Lawrence. Senior Katie Dunleavy of Tewksbury had ten points and five rebounds.

Danielle Papa was limited in minutes with a knee injury, but still managed to add nine points, while freshman Samantha Moriconi added six points to help lead Shawsheen to victory.

"This was a nice win for us after the Notre Dame game because we were able to play everyone and take advantage of resting some tired players," Sueltenfuss said. "We actually started the game really flat and we did not find our rhythm until the second half."

With two wins already in the books, and her team facing a lengthy layoff due to the holidays, Sueltenfuss will try take advantage of the extra practice time to work on some of the things they were working on in the pre-season.

"We are going to be using this time to fine tune a lot of player skills that are unique to individual positions and we hope to use it to condition and get ready for a long stretch ahead," Sueltenfuss said. We really just need to get through (Tuesday night's game) and then we can mentally and physically look ahead to the rest of the season."

BOYS HOOP

It's been a bit of a light schedule to this point for the Shawsheen Tech Boys Basketball team, but they certainly took care of business in the one game they did play, earning a hard fought 47-43 home win over Greater Lawrence last Friday in their season opener, their first win over Greater Lawrence since 2012

The Rams overcame a seven point fourth quarter deficit to earn the win with senior guard Jared Roane of Tewksbury coming off the bench to lead the way with ten of his team high 12 points in the fourth quarter.

Junior guard Craig Rich helped ignite the comeback with a few big defensive stops and a couple of big time steals, while Roane nailed a big three pointer to put the Rams ahead and later hit a free throw to seal the deal with only six seconds to go in the game.

"I was really happy for Jared after the game," Shawsheen coach Greg Bendel said. "He works his tail off in practice and he stepped up big for us when we needed someone to."

Roane was not alone in his efforts however, as the Rams

On December 3rd, the Ryan School held the annual student-faculty basketball game. Parents, students and staff were involved in this fun and successful event. The students won 60-51. The purpose of the event, beside fun, is a fundraiser for an additional HP STREAM Cart. The cart will bring technology to the classrooms for students and staff to use. Jen Mrozowski, coordinator of the event and Ryan School grade 6 Science and Team Leader said, " It was such a huge success, and everyone had a lot of fun. This year we wanted to raise money for more technology at our school. I love the support from the families of the Ryan School. The PAC parents are incredible and work hard to help make the event fun for everyone".

BOYS HOCKEY

The Shawsheen Boys Hockey team is off to a fine start of their own, with a 2-1-1 record, including being undefeated in their past three games after suffering a season opening loss to Lexington. The Rams won in blowout fashion in their next two games, routing CAC rival Rockport last Thursday by a score of 6-0, before pounding another CAC rival Minuteman on Saturday by a score of 8-1.

The Rams wrapped up their week with a 2-1 shootout loss to Haverhill in the opening round of the Haverhill Christmas Tournament on Monday.

In the win over Minuteman the Rams were led by senior Derek Abreau, who had two goals and an assist, while Zach Buckland a goal and two assists and junior Griffin Blanch of Wilmington had two goals, the first two goals of his varsity career.

"Griffin is doing a great job on the wing. It was awesome to see him get his first varsity goal and then pop a second," Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker said. "He has worked hard over the past two seasons and I am very happy with his progress."

A lot is expected of Abreu and Buckland this season, so it was nice for Baker to see his two stars step up so early in the season.

"Abreu and Buckland are doing a great job for us," Baker said. "Both are big bodies that can skate very well. I hope they continue to work hard and have big seasons."

The Rams got another big offensive outburst in their previous game against Rockport in a 6-0 blowout win. Junior forward Jason Colletti led the way on offense for the Rams with a hat trick, the first three goals of his varsity career. Colletti then added another goal in the 2-1 loss to Haverhill.

"Jay is a great player," Baker said. "He goes full speed from when he steps on the ice until his 45-50 second shift is up. He has a ton of skill and works hard. Against Rockport he had the hot hand, showing that working hard will pay off. I wish every kid had his motor."

Senior defenseman Phil Masotta of Tewksbury also had a goal for the Rams, his first of the season, continuing the fine play he has been showing as of late.

"It's always nice to see a D-man score," Baker said. "Phil is working hard and has been steady on the blue. He is a great kid and I am happy for him having some success during his senior season."

Senior goalie Jack Stone of Tewksbury made ten saves in net for the Rams to earn the shutout and also played very well in picking up the win over Minuteman. Fellow senior Corey Goggin got the start against Haverhill and the Rams did not miss a beat in net, with Goggin making 34 saves despite taking the loss.

Jack has been playing great for us. He had to make some big saves early in the Minuteman game. He played half the game," Baker said. "He did not play against Haverhill. Corey Goggin got the start and he was great. We are in a great situation with two goaltenders ready to go and battle whichever night they are between the pipes."

As well as the Rams played in their blowout wins, they may have played even better in their shootout loss to Haverhill. The teams played to a scoreless tie after two periods, but Shawsheen grabbed an early third period lead, but Haverhill came right back to tie it up, sending the teams to a five minute overtime and eventually the shootout before the Rams finally succumbed to the Hillies.

"We played well. We have a nice little rivalry with Haverhill and games with them are always good battles," Baker said. "We played sound defense and had some good offensive chances. We went through a five minute overtime and outshot them 6-1. I thought we were going to pop one. The shootout is five rounds."

"Haverhill scored with their first and third shooter. We went 0-for-3 and needed the fourth to score and that did not happen. It was a great high school hockey game."

Wilmington Pee Wee 3's come home with a hard-earned 4-4 tie

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Pee Wee 3's earned an impressive tie on Saturday, playing to a 4-4 draw with Andover on Saturday at the Breakaway Ice Center. The Wildcats overcame deficits of 3-0 in the first period and 4-3 in the final two minutes of the game to earn the key point and help them keep pace with Andover in the Pee Wee East National A Division with a 4-3-2 record.

Andover got on the board early and often in the first period, taking a 3-0 lead with 1:29 left in the frame, but the Wildcats continued to battle into the final seconds of the period, with Colby Medeiros finally getting them on the board with a beautiful backhand goal off a rebound just before the buzzer sounded on assists from Sean O'Donoghue and Ben McEwen.

There was no scoring in the second period, but the Wildcats controlled play for much of the period, with forwards Shane Roberts, David Olson, Tyler Sheehan, Anthony Anguoni and Adam Ippolito applying pressure throughout the period.

Defensively the Wildcats got tremendous second period efforts by the quartet of Shane Papineau, Aardarsh Sivakumar, Will Kenyon and Shane Costello, who stifled the previously potent Andover attack.

Still, the Wildcats found themselves in a 3-1 hole almost midway through the second period until Medeiros scored his second of the game with 6:29 left in the contest to pull Wilmington within a goal. Wilmington kept up the pressure, and were finally rewarded for their efforts when McEwen scored a power play goal with 3:49 left in the game.

Moments earlier Wilmington goalie Thomas Dalton had kept the Wildcats within one goal with a brilliant diving save, and McEwen made it pay off with his tally to tie the game.

It looked, however, like the Wildcats efforts were all going to be for naught when Andover scored with 2:05 left in the game to take a 4-3 lead.

The Wildcats fought back once again however, with McEwen scoring his second of the game with the goalie pulled and the Wildcats also on the power play, with assists by Kenyon and Costello with 1:14 left.

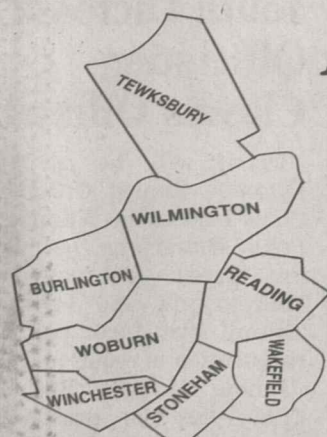

The Wildcat suffered a blowout lost Dedham on Sunday, with David Olson scoring the only goal of the game on an assist by Shane Roberts in the final minute of the second period.

O'Regan will be catching on at Amherst College learning to run his routes and to be the best he could possibly be," Willey said. "We do a pretty good job coaching guy. We have a receiver's coach, which not everybody has, and James took full advantage of that. His willingness to work and learn helped make him the player he is."

O'Regan feels that another thing that made him the player he is today was simply playing at BB&N, and going against great competition on a week in and week out basis.

"That was huge for me. It really helped me see what my talent actually was compared to some other top players," O'Regan said. "There are kids in our league like (Lawrence Academy running back) AJ Dillon, who is the top recruit in New England, and got recruited by Michigan State and Florida.

"Playing against guys like that every week is highly competitive. Going against players like that will definitely help me get ready for next year."

O'Regan, who more than doubled his stats from last season when he had 493 yards and six touchdowns, may very well make a smooth adjustment to the college game as well. While the game will certainly be at a higher level, he may finally be facing some one on one coverage instead of the constant double teams he was facing at BB&N.

"If teams wanted to attack us, they would try to stop James first," Willey said. "One of the most amazing things about his season was that teams had defenses designed to stop him, and they still couldn't do it. That makes the numbers he put up even more incredible."

O'Regan, who knows a thing or two about playing quarterback, credits BB&N quarterback Jeff Costello, a transfer from Lexington High, with helping him put up the incredible numbers that he did this season.

"It wasn't just me. We had three outstanding receivers and Jeff was unbelievable,"

During this season, James O'Regan caught 56 passes and scored 17 touchdowns for BB&N. (courtesy photo).

O'Regan said. "To have him throwing the ball was a huge help and having other great receivers like we had took a lot of pressure off me."

Nobody knows exactly what will await O'Regan once he arrives on campus at Amherst and begins his college career, but one thing that O'Regan knows for sure is that he is looking forward to the new challenge.

"I am really excited for a new chapter in my life," O'Regan said. "I just can't wait to get started."

Notice of Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company, L.L.C.'s Proposed Northeast Energy Direct Project

Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company, L.L.C. ("Tennessee") plans to construct a project referred to as the Northeast Energy Direct Project ("NED Project" or "Project"). Tennessee, a Kinder Morgan company, is an interstate natural gas transmission pipeline company that is subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ("FERC" or "Commission"). Tennessee has been in operation since 1943 and its principal office is located at 1001 Louisiana Street, Houston, Texas 77002. Tennessee proposes to expand and modify its existing pipeline system in Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Connecticut. The NED Project is being developed to meet the increased demand in the Northeast United States ("U.S.") for transportation capacity of natural gas.

On November 20, 2015, Tennessee filed an Application for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity ("Application") with the Commission for authorization to construct, install, modify, operate, and maintain pipeline and compression facilities to be located in Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Connecticut, as described below. The Commission assigned Docket No. CP16-21-000 to the certificate proceeding.

The NED Project will provide new firm natural gas transportation capacity to meet the growing energy needs in the Northeast U.S., particularly in New England. The Supply Path Component, as defined in the Application, will transport up to 1.2 billion cubic feet per day ("Bcf/d") of natural gas, and the Market Path Component, as defined in the Application, will transport up to 1.3 Bcf/d of natural gas. The proposed Project involves the following facilities:

Approximately 41 miles of pipeline looping on Tennessee's 300 Line in Pennsylvania; Approximately 133 miles of new pipeline, of which 102 miles are proposed to be generally co-located with the certificated Constitution Pipeline Project (FERC Docket Number CP13-499-

000) in Pennsylvania and New York (extending from Tennessee's existing 300 Line near Auburn, Pennsylvania to Wright, New York); Approximately 54 miles of pipeline generally co-located with Tennessee's existing 200 Line and an existing utility corridor in New York; Approximately 64 miles of pipeline generally co-located with an existing utility corridor in Massachusetts; Approximately 70 miles of pipeline generally co-located with an existing utility corridor in New Hampshire (extending southeast to Dracut, Massachusetts); Approximately 58 miles of various laterals and pipeline looping segments in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Connecticut to serve local markets; Construction of nine new compressor stations and 15 new meter stations, and modifications to an existing compressor station and 14 existing meter stations throughout the Project area; and Construction of appurtenant facilities, including mainline valves, cathodic protection, and pig facilities through the Project area. Please see the enclosed map for the locations of Project activities.

To the extent that it is practicable, feasible, and in compliance with existing law, Tennessee proposes to locate proposed pipeline facilities (either pipeline looping segments or co-located pipeline facilities) generally within or adjacent to its existing right-of-way associated with its existing 300 Line in Pennsylvania and Connecticut; its existing 200 Line in New York and Massachusetts; and existing utility (pipeline and powerline) corridors in Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire.

Tennessee is requesting issuance of a certificate order for the Project in the fourth quarter of 2016 and proposes to commence construction activities in January 2017, in anticipation of placing the Project facilities in-service by November 2018 (with the exception of the proposed pipeline loop in Connecticut, which will be placed in-service by November 2019), consistent with the terms and conditions of the precedent agreements executed with Project shippers.

During construction, restoration, and mitigation activities for the Project,

Tennessee will follow the Project-specific Upland Erosion Control, Revegetation and Maintenance Plan and the Wetland and Waterbody Construction and Mitigation Procedures, which will incorporate the provisions from the Commission's Upland Erosion Control, Revegetation and Maintenance Plan and the Commission's Wetland and Waterbody Construction and Mitigation Procedures.

If you are interested in reviewing Tennessee's Application for the Project, an electronic copy of the public version of the complete Application is available for public viewing at public libraries located in each county where the Project will be located. A list of the locations where the Application can be accessed is included in the Environmental Report, Resource Report 1, included with the Application, and is also available on the Project's website: http://www.kindermorgan.com/business/gas_pipelines/east/neenergydirect/.

Additionally, a copy of Tennessee's Application is available for viewing on the Commission's website at www.ferc.gov. Also available on this website is the Commission's most recent landowner pamphlet entitled "An Interstate Natural Gas Facility on My Land? What Do I Need To Know?" The pamphlet includes the FERC's summary of landowner rights at FERC. You may reach the Commission through its website or by calling the Commission's Office of External Affairs at (866) 208-3372.

Should your property be directly affected by this Project, a representative of Tennessee will contact you in the near future to discuss the Project. Tennessee has mailed notices to landowners directly affected by this Project, to landowners whose property abuts the Project, and to local government entities. If you have not received such a notice, your property is most likely not affected.

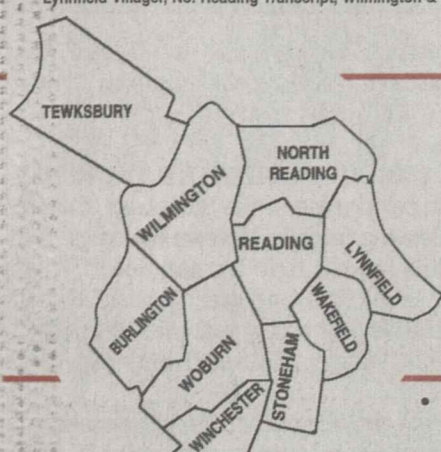

Tennessee strives to be a good neighbor as it provides a safe, clean, and reliable source of energy to the nation's consumers and industry. Questions concerning this Project may be directed to Tennessee at (844) 277-1047.

Stoneham Common soon to be a winter wonderland

BY PAT BLAIS

He envisioned creating a scene reminiscent of a snow globe right in the heart of the municipality's quaint downtown, but up until very recently, it looked as if that dream might be shattered yet again.

Anyone driving by the Town Common in Stoneham Square can now capture a glimpse of lifelong resident Craig Celli's vision of a winter wonderland, as the boards for a new 60-by-90 foot skating rink now stand sandwiched amid the brightly-decorated holiday tree and a gazebo draped with its own seasonal lighting.

Though the idea is not new, as Woburn erects two outdoor rinks at Library Park and Reading has for some 40-plus years flooded three town fields for ice skating, the arrangement in Stoneham is unique in that it is being fully funded by private enterprises.

According to town officials,

Celli and local brothers Patrick and Ryan Cassidy are contributing up to $20,000 to build, maintain, and later disassemble the infrastructure.

"That area on the common is such a prominent spot in our downtown area. My vision was to bring something to the town, where you'd further draw people to the downtown area," Celli explained in a recent phone interview.

"A lot of local residents are

A NEW OUTDOOR ICE SKATING RINK has been erected on Stoneham Common. The privately funded project is waiting for cold weather to get going and is sure to delight local families. Several local communities now offer outdoor skating.

stepping up. They like the way the town is heading and want to get involved," commented Board of Selectmen Chair Thomas Boussy, referring to a growing number of new partnerships between local government and its citizenry. "This is part of the revitalization of downtown. We want to keep events on the common and get people used to walking [around there]."

Currently, local officials plan to commemorate the inaugural opening of the outdoor recreational spot on Jan. 2, but given the unseasonably warm weather, that ceremony may be postponed until the winter chill hits the area as expected.

Those looking for a little outdoor fun, whether from Stoneham or not, can skate on the rink free-of-charge daily between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. from the date of grand opening until the end of February, when Cassidy Landscaping tentatively plans on breaking down the equipment.

Surprising opposition In Stoneham, which only recently began recovering from a near decade of challenging financial times, a handful of community leaders and merchants launched their first attempts three years ago to build the outdoor recreational space.

That same year, in neighboring Woburn, city officials unveiled plans to erect two outdoor rinks on Library Park, which the city's Recreation Commission retains jurisdiction over, though Woburn's Department of Public Works (DPW) helps with maintenance.

Facing virtually no opposition, those spaces opened in January of 2012, and just recently, the boards were again installed on the public park by the Woburn's police station for the third consecutive year of free skating.

A similar model has existed since the 1970s in Reading, where the town floods a portion of Sturges Park, Castine Field, and Memorial Park for public skating each winter.

"They're all very popular. If we have ice, they're popular almost every night," said Reading Recreation Director John Feudo in an interview this week. "I've seen plenty of pond hockey, families skating around in circles, and people trying to learn to skate."

"It's one of those unique things you really ought to do as a person living in New England. Outside skating is imperfect. There are some bumps and cuts on [the ice], and when you're indoors, the expectation is much different," he added.

For Stoneham officials, who only just weeks ago resurrected the recreation department after doing away with the town's parks program in 2005, a municipally-funded outdoor skating rink has been deemed an out-of-the-question expense for some

"Star Wars: The Force Awakens"

AMONG ALL THE CHARACTERS IN "STAR WARS: THE FORCE AWAKENS," there's the nobody with the dead-end job and a Jedi obsession (Daisy Ridley's Rey), who has a life-changing encounter with a droid named BB-8.

BY: LINDSEY BAHR, AP FILM WRITER

J.J. Abrams may not elevate the language of "Star Wars," but he sure is fluent in it. "Star Wars: The Force Awakens" is no more and no less than the movie that made us love it in the first place. In fact, it's basically the same thing. Isn't that what we all wanted anyway? It's hard to talk rationally about "Star Wars." It is a deeply silly thing, with a genuine, undeniable hold on our culture. Chalk it up to nostalgia, collective arrested development or the ineffable. But for many, the magic of "Star Wars" is inseparable from the magic of the movies and, hey, that's no small thing.

These movies make us lose ourselves in the spectacle. They make us forget our best instincts. They make us love the advertising as much as the art. They make us kids again. In this way, "The Force Awakens," the seventh movie in this improbable yet inevitable series, delivers.

It's a movie made by someone who loves "Star Wars" deeply. Someone who can see more clearly than even its creator what made it so special to so many people. Abrams has taken everything that we adore about that first film, delicately mixed up a few elements, and churned out a reverent homage that's a heck of a lot of fun to watch.

From the opening scroll to the sequel-setup ending, he manages to hit each beat of its 38-year-old predecessor.

Abrams has essentially passed the torch on to its new cast by making them amalgamations of the originals. You'll know it when you see it. Who cares if it's "Star Wars" Mad-Libs?

There's the resistance-affiliated droid, who ends up stranded on a desert planet carrying a secret message (BB-8). There's the nobody with the dead-end job and a Jedi obsession (Daisy Ridley's Rey), who has a life-changing encounter with said droid. There's the reckless kid uncertain of his allegiances (John Boyega's Finn). There's the cocky pilot (Oscar Isaac's Poe Dameron). There's the powerful, masked villain, too (Adam Driver's Kylo Ren).

The plot is as unwieldy and MacGuffin-filled as one might expect. It almost serves no purpose to go into the specifics at this point beyond the fact that the galaxy is in disarray, an evil army is growing (as is a resistance), and a series of coincidences help Rey collect a "Wizard of Oz"-worthy posse to help get BB-8 back to its rightful owners.

This time, it's all because of Luke Skywalker (Mark Hamill). He's vanished. Those are the first words on the screen and the last we'll say about the big mystery.

The action is nearly non-stop, as is the humor, which kicks into gear when Han Solo (Harrison Ford) finally shows up. Ford is in his element — delightful, energetic, funny, brash and fully Han, bantering with Chewie and everyone with the same verve he showed nearly 40 years ago.

If only the same showcase was given to Carrie Fisher, who is woefully, inexcusably underused as Leia.

As for the new characters, Ridley's Rey is a dream. She is feisty, endearingly awe-filled, capable and magnetic. She is the new anchor. She is our Luke, and she's much cooler than he ever was.

Driver's Kylo Ren is also a disarmingly powerful presence, whose wickedness seeps through the mask. Boyega is appealing as Finn, too, even if his character doesn't quite make sense on paper. (How do empathy, guilt and personality develop in a man who has been trained since birth to be a Stormtrooper?) But that's taking things too seriously.

Others are less memorable, including Gwendoline Christie's Captain Phasma, and Andy Serkis's preposterous-looking Supreme Leader Snoke. And while Abrams captures the lively, hokey and practical visual fun of the originals, he occasionally slips into generic blockbuster mode. But those moments pass, and all it takes is a perfect John Williams music cue to transport you back into the cozy blanket of that galaxy far, far away.

Loving "Star Wars" without reserve isn't an easily justifiable thing, and neither is the fun of "The Force Awakens." They are intrinsically linked. To love the original is to love this one. On its own, "The Force Awakens" probably isn't much. It's not likely to convert anyone, either. But for the rest of us — even the most casual of fans — it fits the bill just fine.

"Star Wars: The Force Awakens," is rated PG-13 by the Motion Picture Association of America for "sci-fi action violence." Running time: 135 minutes. Three stars out of four.

"Star Wars: The Force Awakens" nominated for best picture

NEW YORK (AP) — The Critics' Choice Awards have added "Star Wars: The Force Awakens" as an 11th best-picture nominee.

After announcing their nominees last week, the group's board of directors reconvened to add J.J. Abrams' acclaimed "Star Wars" sequel to their best picture category. Its members hadn't been able to see "The Force Awakens" before sending in their ballots.

Many awards groups, like the Hollywood Foreign Press' Golden Globes, announced their honors before seeing "The Force Awakens." One exception was the American Film Institute, which selected "The Force Awakens" as one of its 10 best of the year after delaying its announcement in order to see it first.

The Critics' Choice Awards will be broadcast from Los Angeles on Jan. 17. "Mad Max: Fury Road" leads with 13 nods, including best picture.

Train enthusiasts of all ages turned out Boston Metro Hi-Railers holiday season fun-filled

A large turnout of train enthusiasts joined the Boston Metro Hi-Railers Model railroad club for its annual winter open house.

They saw many new trains and displays presented as the club has grown and developed new area of its layout. Model trains including, the Lionel Motor city express train, the Union Pacific western train set, the Chesapeake and Ohio passenger set with 12 passenger cars, Boston and Maine train sets and numerous other sets representing other areas across the country.

The children's layout has been expanded with the addition of new equipment and designs. A large number of children from around the region and their families joined the festivities.

There was a raffle for all participants, which included a train set and numerous freight cars donated by the Lionel Collectors Club of America.

The first session of teaching a small number of interested children in developing design skills so they could build their own layouts at home was held over the holidays. This will be an ongoing project run by Dr. Green from Reading. This provides the basic rudimentary lesson and will be available for the next phase at the club's spring open house. This is part of the effort to encourage more children to recognize how interesting model railroading is.

The Metro Hi-Railers participated in the Wilmington lighting ceremony the week before, moving one of the children's layouts to the Town lighting ceremony on the town common. This was enthusiastically received, as there were as many as 5 families deep of people participating in the train runs. The club had a tremendous response from the town for its participation.

The club also provided a display at the annual Greenberg train and toy show. Andy Zalewski, club President, had a display of antique model trains, over 100 years old. The trains were made of tin and were colorful and an interesting exposure to kids of what railroading was like in the 800' it was a beautiful layout of trains from that era and was one of the big attractions at the Greenberg show.

The club had a very interesting and active month. In the future it will also be encouraging clubs like the Boys and Girls Club to come and see the layout.

Please check your local "Daily Times Chronicle" for daily updates.

HOLIDAY CENTRAL (TEWKSBURY)

"There's nothing like festive music to get in the spirit of the holidays," notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"Amaya Allen, an eighth grader at Tewksbury's John Wynn Middle school, certainly knows this prompting her to organize a holiday concert for the residents of Bayberry Assisted Living Community in town.

"Amaya was selected as the 2016 Project 351 Ambassador representing Tewksbury. Project 351 works to unite 8th graders across the Commonwealth and encourage them to spread kindness and service in their own communities. Amaya was chosen for her leadership skills and compassion.

"She rallied the Wynn Middle School Art Club and Friends of Wynn Community Service Club to make holiday cards and crafts for the seniors. She also invited several Wynn students, a TMHS student, and a North Street School student to play instruments. Some students played piano, guitar, flute, and trumpet, while others read books such as 'Yes, Virginia,' 'Santa is Coming to Boston,' and 'The Polar Express.'

"The residents enjoyed the live music and a sing-along to 'We Wish You a Merry Christmas.' The program was supervised by guidance counselors Jen Dwyer, Jaime Noberini, and Allison Hayes. For more information visit www.project351.com."

FULL SPEED AHEAD (STONEHAM)

"The Board of Selectmen ... agreed to slate a total of $300,000 toward the revival of the recreation department over the next three years, when town officials say the operation will become fully self-sufficient," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"In a 3-to-1 vote, with Selectman Frank Vallarelli staunchly opposed, the board authorized Town Administrator David Ragucci to rely upon some $250,000 in mitigation money from Logan Communications for the multi-year proposal to resurrect the long-defunct youth services program.

"We are the only community in the area that doesn't have [a parks program]. I know I don't have to convince this board, but it really strengthens the community," said Selectman Ann Marie O'Neill, who pitched to her peers the plan to fund the department over three years.

"The $250,000 in mitigation money, just a portion of approximately $6.2 million pledged by Logan Communications last October in exchange for being allowed to erect a digital billboard along I-93, will be added to another $50,000 appropriated by Town Meeting this fall for launching a new recreation department.

"Under the board's current plan, the recreation director job opening would be posted later this month ... with the vacancy likely being filled by February. The new hire would then begin the necessary leg work to launch a new era of youth programming for the spring and summer...."

FOR REEL (BURLINGTON)

In an effort to keep up with the increased quantity of moviegoers, AMC Burlington on South Avenue, off Middlesex Turnpike, appeared in front of the Board of Selectmen ... with a request to renew the cinema's license to stay open later on certain nights, which the members unanimously approved," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The purpose of this is to allow the cinema to extend its hours of operation until the early morning after midnight on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, as well as random weeknights when a popular movie with a lot of hype is set to premiere...

"The license request will see that the cinema is allowed to start movies no later than 12:30 a.m. on the aforementioned nights. On other nights, the last showing currently allowed at the cinema is 11 p.m. April 2014 was the first time the selectmen permitted the extension of hours request for AMC Burlington 10. By choice of the selectmen, they felt it is in the town's best interests to have the cinema appear before the board annually to get the request renewed and approved, making it a formality for this type of process.

"After remodeling most of the cinema two years ago, it has been successfully transformed into a modernized setting with 10 screens and reclining seats for all. The property owner, National Development, performed significant upgrades to the cinema, including investing $5M to update and improve its seating, concessions and overall aesthetic features. The remodeled cinema eliminated just over 1,400 seats, leaving the seat total at 990. The old cinema model entailed 2,400 seats...."

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA: The NBA likes to schedule big match-ups on Christmas Day with only "good" teams playing on the holiday. When was the last time the Boston Celtics played on Christmas and who was it against?

The Austin Prep boys basketball team got off to a strong start to the season this past weekend defeating Catholic Central League opponent Christo Rey. The Cougars were 1-1 heading into their first home game on Tuesday night against league rival Matignon.

Junior DAVE RICHARD of North Reading scored 17 points in the win over Christo Rey. Richard also scored 17 points in the team's season opener. Last season Richard set the school's single-game 3-point shooting record hitting 8 threes against Lowell Catholic. Sophomore Denis Taylor (Melrose) also has a solid game scoring 11 points and grabbing 8 rebounds.

Head Coach Eric Polli was happy with his team's performance.

"Our guys really came to play right from the start," said Polli the team's first-year coach. "They brought a lot of energy and took a comfortable lead early. Our goal is simply to put together as many quality possessions as possible."

Polli applauded Richard's strong start to the season.

"Dave wants the ball in his hands and likes to take the big shot," said Polli. "He is fearless and plays the game with a ton of confidence."

Woburn's ISAAH CASHWELL-DOE had a nice season for the Bishop Fenwick football team. The 5-7 sophomore running back was one of the main offensive options for the Crusaders who finished the season with a 36-30 win over St. Mary's of Lynn on the night before Thanksgiving at Manning Field. It was the first time the two teams have played on the Thanksgiving holiday since 1991. It was also a nice revenge win for Fenwick as it lost to St. Mary's in the Division 5 North semifinals.

Cashwell-Doe has transitioned his football success over to basketball for Bishop Fenwick. Doe scored 22 points in Saturday's romp over Lynn Tech at the North Shore Basketball Classic at Salem State University.

Reading's NATE CLARKE, a junior point guard and captain of the Plymouth State men's basketball team, is helping his team get off to a great 10-1 start as the Panthers broke for winter break.

Clarke has started all 11 games and is the team leader in minutes played averaging 32.5 per game. A true point guard and pass-first playmaker, Clarke is averaging 4.3 assists per game and 3.9 ppg. The 10 wins already eclipses last year's win total.

Wakefield's CHRIS CALNAN, a freshman guard, is also a member of the Plymouth State team. Calnan was a two-time Middlesex League All-Star at Wakefield High.

Four area swimmers are members of the Springfield College's women's team which has posted four victories prior to their winter break. Sophomore KASEY LAMB of Reading (distance, breast), senior ALLYSSA WOODMAN of Reading (sprint, free, fly) and Wakefield's ALANNAH LEE (free), a junior, and EMILY MEDEIROS (breast, fly), a junior, are members of the team.

Medeiros in particular has had an excellent season as she continued her dominant 2015-16 campaign with a pair of first-place finishes in the Dec. 12 meet against Middlebury College, including times of 30.45 in the 50 breaststroke and 1:06.92 in the 100 breaststroke. Behind nine first-place finishes, the Springfield College women's swimming and diving program edged Middlebury College, 152-148, at the Middlebury Natatorium.

off the beaten path so they're not destroying a town asset. For the sake of sounding like Scrooge, I didn't like this idea before, and I don't like it now," said the selectman. "You have a $2,000 budget for [restoring the Town Common's landscaping]. If we have one error, we can ruin the common for a long time."

"We didn't get into this business by just walking around and cutting lawns. We went to school for this, so we know what type of grass will work," insisted Ryan Cassidy in response to those remarks. "We have the power, knowledge, and time to get this done. The Town Common will look better [than it did before]. I can guarantee it."

A few months later, during a subsequent discussion before the town board, Vallarelli again objected to the partnership, saying Stoneham was essentially giving away the Town Common as an advertisement without first soliciting bids from other parties.

Specifically, the selectman challenged parts of a written agreement between the town and the businesses, which gave Celli and the Cassidy brothers the right to reinstall the rink each year.

"It's a monopoly. That's a public facility and it belongs to everybody, not just two people," objected Vallarelli, who went as far as to argue that the donation shouldn't be considered so generous, when the petitioners were getting free advertising space in return.

Ultimately, Town Counsel William Solomon agreed the deal amounted to a lease of town space, which though not subject to state bidding laws, does prohibit a right-of-first refusal clause for maintaining the rink in the future.

That modified agreement was finally inked a few weeks later.

According to Boussy, who described himself as floored by the criticisms given the sizable upfront investment being made by the local merchants, he believes those protests ultimately helped shape a better project.

"I was shocked. When I first brought it up, I thought everyone would be in favor of it. It was helpful though, because I learned what the obstacles are [to doing something like this in the future], and I think we got a better product because of it," said the selectman.

Though he also was taken aback by the tone of those in opposition — particularly the insinuation that he and the Cassidy brothers were only seeking to advance their businesses — Celli believes critics were looking out for what they believed to be the best interests of Stoneham.

"In order to get something on the Town Common, there has to be a public process. That allows people who may not agree to have their voices heard as well. I didn't expect it, but I understand it as having a place as part of the process," he said.

"Being a lifelong resident, and having not just my family, but my brothers and parents still in town, it is very gratifying to finally see this come to fruition," Celli added. "We want it to be something everyone enjoys. Our hope is we can have some measure of success, so next fall, when we talk about this, we can do it again."

With the win, the Pride pick up its fourth victory of the season.

Lamb was second in the 500 freestyle in 5:22.14 and took another second-place finish in the 400 individual medley in 4:46.06. She also came in fourth in the 200 freestyle in 2:00.84.

Lee came in eighth in the 200 freestyle 2:19.03 and was also ninth in the 50 free in 30.59.

Woodman touched in eighth place in the 100 fly in 1:06.14 while placing ninth in the 100 free in 57.97.

Besides her two individual victories, Medeiros added a fifth-place finish in the 400 IM in a time of 4:50.93.

The success of the Reading High girls swim program has produced some other fine college swimmers. OLIVIA GALLUGI, is a senior at Keene State, ERIN DALY, a junior at Bryant University, and MEGHAN BARRY, is a freshman at Trinity.

With one indoor karting center already open in the Plymouth-Kingston area, K1 Speed Boston in Wilmington becomes the company's second New England location. The largest karting company in the United States, K1 Speed continues to grow. The new Boston facility brings the total number of K1 Speed facilities to just over 30 — and there are more facilities scheduled to open in the near future.

The new Wilmington facility brings K1 Speed to one of America's most loved and historic cities. Boston, home of such storied franchises as the Red Sox, Celtics, and Bruins, is a sporting town through and through. K1 Speed hopes to tap into this love of sports and introduce novice and veteran racers alike to the thrill of indoor karting.

What makes K1 Speed unique is its commitment to all-electric go-karts. Though competitors have followed, K1 Speed is the industry leader and really brought electric karting into the public consciousness. Opening its first center in Carlsbad, CA in 2003, K1 Speed has since expanded its reach throughout the United States and even internationally, to cities as far as Mexico City. Now Boston residents will be able to experience the excitement of indoor karting for themselves.

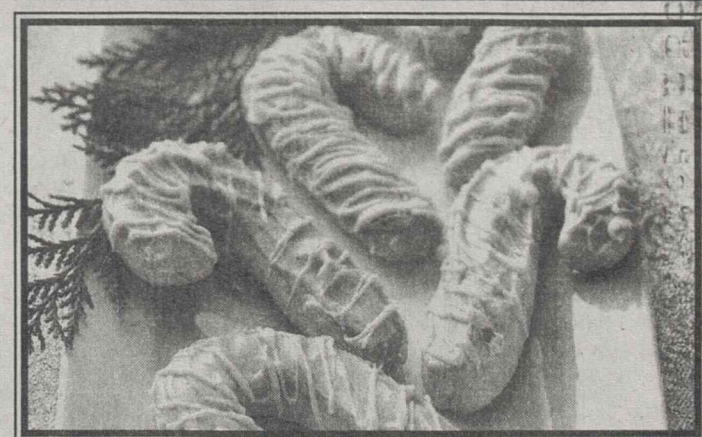

Answer to this week's question: The last time the Celtics played on Christmas was in 2012 when they romped to a 93-76 win at the Barclays Center against the Brooklyn Nets. Rajon Rondo led four Celtics in double figures with a game-high 19 points.

HomeNewsHere RECIPE

Candy Cane Cookies

Enjoy these candy cane shaped cookies flavored with raspberries and topped with white baking chips - a delightful baked dessert.

1) Heat oven to 350°F (if using dark or nonstick cookie sheet, heat oven to 325°F). In large bowl, beat granulated sugar, 1 cup butter, the vanilla and egg with electric mixer on medium speed until well blended. Beat in flour.

2) Divide dough into 9 pieces. On floured surface, shape each piece of dough into 16-inch rope, slightly less than 1/2 inch in diameter. Cut each rope into 4-inch lengths; place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bend 1 end of each cookie into candy cane shape.

3) Bake 10 to 14 minutes or until bottoms are light golden brown. Immediately remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely, about 20 minutes.

4) In small bowl, stir together powdered sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, the syrup, milk and food color. Spread on top and sides of cookies; let stand until set before drizzling with melted white chips.

5) In small resealable plastic food-storage bag, place white baking chips and oil; seal bag. Microwave on High 1 minute. Gently squeeze bag until chips are smooth. Cut off tiny corner of bag. Squeeze bag to make stripes on cookies to look like candy canes. Let stand until frosting is set before storing.

Expert Tip: Hang these pastel candy canes on a small artificial tree for a tasty tabletop decoration.

This week's Sampler: Picardie Villa

European styling graces Picardie Villa

THIS CHATEAU HOME PLAN HAS A FASCINATING facade, luxurious two-story spread designed for living large, indoors and out. Two-sided fireplaces in living room and nook can also be enjoyed from patio and game room. A porte-cochere links the interior to a patio and a garage complex that can shelter six cars.

To enter, you pass through a lofty, vaulted porch before stepping inside a grand foyer with a 24-foot ceiling. An opening on the right leads into a dining room with an attached wine room, while the opening on the left links with a vaulted den, complete with gas fireplace.

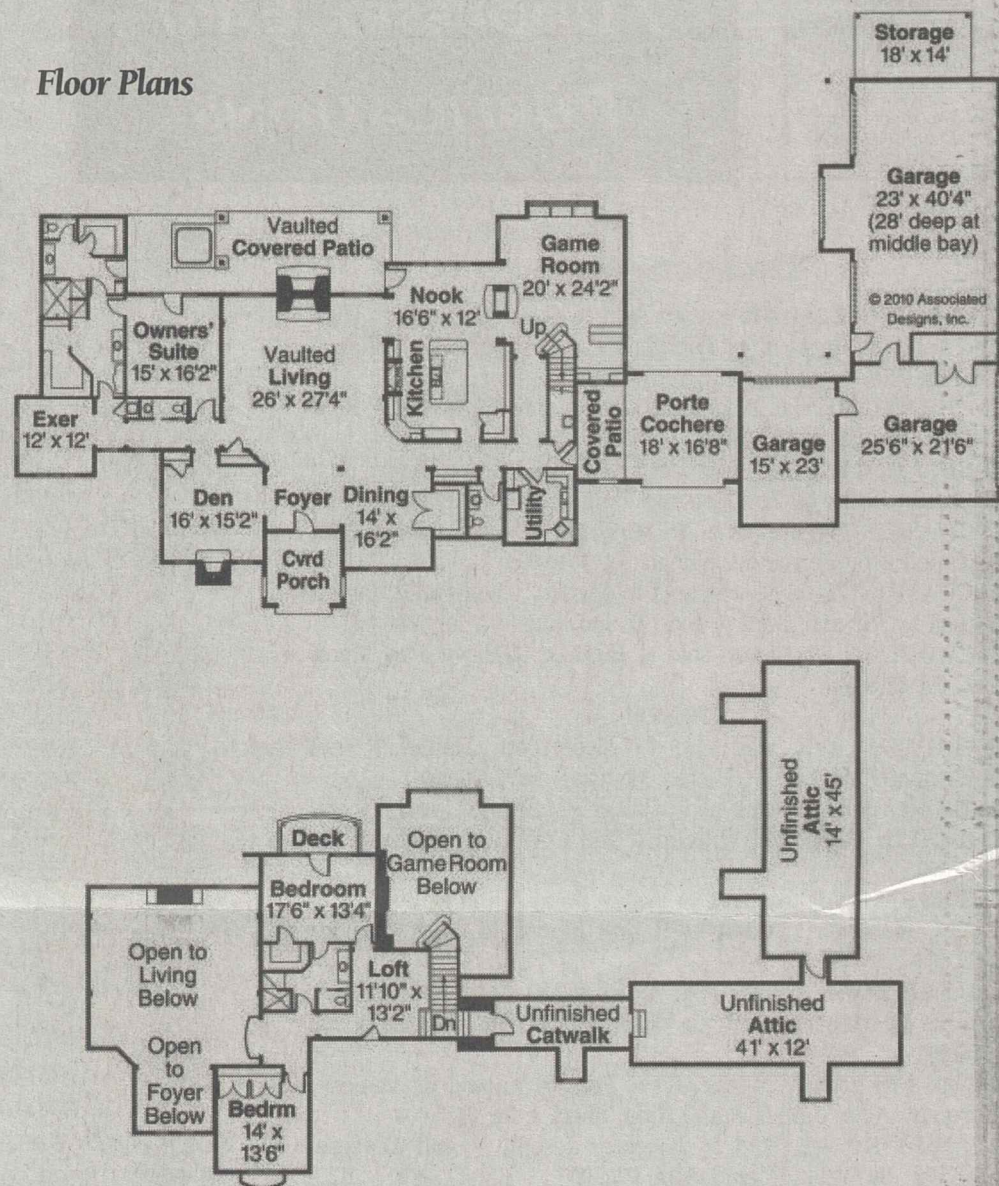

Straight ahead, the foyer opens out into a vast vaulted living room, where stacked windows flank a wide-hearthed, two-sided fireplace. The spaciousness will remind you of a Chalet style home plan. The upper stack of windows culminates in a gothic arch. Near the windows, another opening leads into the sun-washed nook and gourmet kitchen.

A second two-sided fireplace brightens the nook. This one is flanked by two arched openings that flow into a high-ceilinged game room with its own wet bar. Fireplace flames can be enjoyed from either room.

The vaulted owners' suite boasts two bathrooms, each with a skylight and its own walk-in closet. An exercise room is down the hall, and the suite has two doors that access the covered patio and spa. This patio flows into two more outdoor living areas.

A porte-cochere links the Picardie Villa to a side patio and a garage complex that can shelter six cars. Two more bed-

Forum on potential rebranding

Tewksbury's "Redmen" mascot

TEWKSBURY - Residents are invited to a public forum to discuss the Tewksbury Public School's "Redmen" mascot on January 27, 2016 at 6 pm at Tewksbury Memorial High School's Dr. Christine McGrath Performing Arts Center.

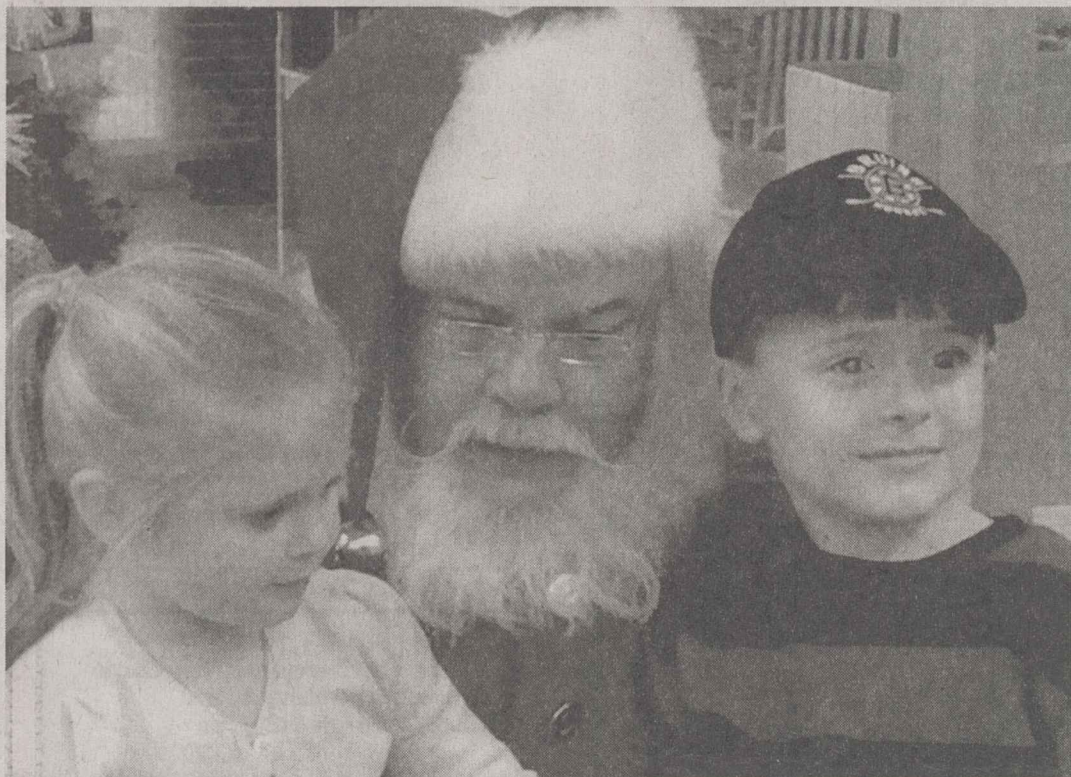

"The forum is intended to elicit community opinion and gauge the level of support to change or maintain the current mascot. It is my intention to file a report highlighting your comments and opinions on this matter to the School Committee at a later meeting",

Dr. John O'Connor, Tewksbury Superintendent of Schools said.

This is not the first time the mascot question has arisen as a question. Five years ago the issue arose but there was little interest at that time.

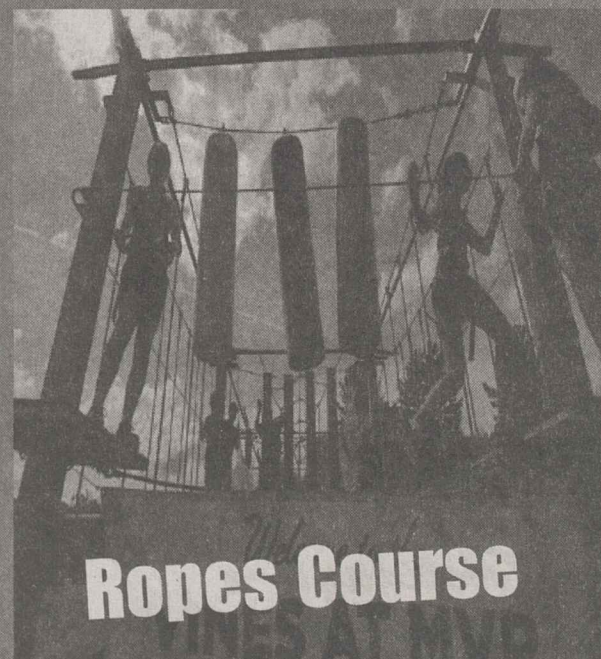

School Committee members will be in attendance but will neither comment nor vote on the matter at this meeting.

All are welcome to provide their viewpoint on this very important matter. Speakers will be limited to three minutes each.

KUB Vendors held a shopping spree at the VFW Hall in Tewksbury on Saturday before Christmas. The hall was packed with vendors with all the right stuff and shoppers had fun sampling the wares and adopting kittens.

Peregrine's Landing at Tewksbury was proud to submit an original pen and ink drawing by one of their residents, Mr. Robert Carr. Bob chose to draw a falcon which represents our community symbol- the peregrine. Having had Muscular Dystrophy his entire life, Bob has learned to make changes as the disease has progressed. As a boy he had difficulty walking; running; and playing sports, but he learned as early as first grade that he could draw.

After getting married in 1974, Bob set aside his art to raise three children. Faced with being unable to walk, Bob, again, turned to his art. As a resident of The Peregrine Community, Bob draws daily whether it be a design for a holiday card, a gift for another resident or just creating for himself. Bob plans to publish a book of his unique designs. photo: BruceHilliard.com

Downloading Holiday Music from the Library

By Brad McKenna, Technology Librarian

WILMINGTON - Do you have a favorite holiday song and likewise one that you turn off when it comes on the radio? Why not put together your own soundtrack or playlist for free? Whether you're looking for Christmas, Hanukkah, or Kwanza songs, you will find your favorites on either Freegal or Hoopla, the library's downloadable and streaming music services.

These services can be found on library's website; just click on the "Downloads" page <http://wilmlibrary.org/downloads>. To use Freegal, you will need your library card number and pin (usually the last four digits of your phone number). After logging in, you can search for a song or artist and download up to five songs per week. Once downloaded, the songs are yours... forever. Some of the artists you'll find spreading holiday cheer are Louis Armstrong, Bing Crosby, and Judy Garland. You can also stream up to three hours of music per week on Freegal.

You will also find Hoopla on the library's downloads page. If it's your first time using Hoopla, you'll have to create a user account and have your library card handy to access the library's subscription. But once logged in you'll have access to a plethora of songs to stream. You can stream entire albums instead of just songs. Music can be borrowed for seven days. In addition to music, you will have access to holiday ebooks, audiobooks, movies, and TV shows. You are limited to 10 items per month on Hoopla.

Instructions on using these services are available online or you can stop by the library and pick up a hand-out or you can schedule a tech help session with Technology Librarian, Brad McKenna and he'll help get you started. Let the library help you enjoy the holidays with your favorite holiday music!

Wilmington's Strings Attached performs at the State House

String-instrument players from the Wilmington "Strings Attached" Orchestra made their way into the Massachusetts State House amid festive holiday decorations for their annual performance as part of the Winter Concert Series as a guest of Representative James Miceli, and showcased their hard-practiced talents to officials and the public alike.

After filing in and setting up their instruments, students, parents, and audience members stopped for a moment for a surprise visit from Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin, who praised the students for their achievement of being part of the State House Winter Concert Series and Director Liz Ehrman, for her leadership and teaching.

Highlights of the concert included pieces such as "Little Drummer Boy" which included a performance by the Strings Attached newly added percussion section, Ukrainian Bell Carol, and their signature piece, Royal Fireworks.

The music, heard throughout the building, caught the ear of many including Sheriff Peter Koutoujian, and several State Representatives from across the Commonwealth. Numerous tourists, from across the state, country, and world also stopped to photograph and enjoy the performers, who gathered at the foot of the historic Grand Staircase made for a special treat.

"I am immensely proud of the Strings Attached Orchestra," said Representative Miceli of the group. "I have had the pleasure of watching them grow and flourish since their start, and one of the honors I am most proud to have received in my years of public service is my 'King of String' title from the group for working with them on hosting numerous performances, such as this one."

Two locals excel at St. Patrick School

The following students from the Saint Patrick School but live in Wilmington have achieved Honor Roll status for the Director Ehrman and her students are truly second-to-none, and I have no doubts that they were the talk of the State House after their performance."

The Wilmington Strings Attached program began in 1987, and has grown to include over 400 members from 4th to 12th grade. High School members are eligible to travel abroad, where they officially represent the United States and Wilmington to the international community.

Previous tours have taken the group to the United Kingdom, Ireland, France, and Italy. Upon the conclusion of the concert Director Liz Ehrman was very pleased with the performance. "These students were ambassadors today for the town of Wilmington. Next year-France!"

Ryan School conducts STEAM Museum visit

On Monday, December 7th, the fifth graders at the Ryan School participated in the STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, Mathematics) Museum.

This program, sponsored by the Ryan PAC, took place in the Ryan Gym from 8:30-2 pm. Students and teachers visited the STEAM Museum with their class and participate in a variety of interactive STEAM related exhibits. These exhibits range from building an arch to programming a robot to 3D printing.

Students were encouraged to explore the museum at their own pace and manage their time between stations that appeal to their individual interests. The exhibits support the student's science and math curriculum but also expose them to a variety of high-tech fields of student.

Bill Hart, Assistant Principal of the Ryan School said, "The STEAM Museum was scheduled by our outstanding PAC to further supplement our Science curriculum. Students were introduced to robots, built with gears, powered a light bulb and watched a 3D printer in action. The hands on activities had teachers and students engaged for the entire hour visit".

The Science curriculum has been enhanced by the Tewksbury Public Schools with the help from the Tewksbury Education Foundation. Purchases such as 3D printers help create a real world science experience for the students and teachers.

The Community Services Department will create an after school science program at the Ryan using the 3D printer.

Catmobile comes to Woburn on Jan. 16 & 25

The Catmobile, which offers low cost spay/neuter for cats only, is coming to Petco located at 103 Commerce Way in Woburn on January 16 and 25.

In celebration of "Happy Neuter Year" in January only, the Catmobile is offering the low cost of $20 for owned male cats. This offer is made possible by a grant received from PetSmart Charities. The regular price for a neuter is $80.

The Merrimack River Feline Rescue Society operates The Catmobile which is staffed by a licensed veterinarian and one veterinary technician. The package consists of spay/neuter, rabies vaccinations, exam, nail trim, and treatment for fleas and ear mites. Individually packaged take-home flea treatment is available for $15 per dose.

A female spay is $120.

Ferals are $35 and will be ear-tipped. Reservations are required and can be made online at www.catmobile.org or by calling 978-465-1940.

The Merrimack River Feline Rescue Society wants all to ring in the New Year by making a resolution to neuter your male cat during their "Happy Neuter Year" campaign.

Sponsored by PetSmart Charities, the largest funder of animal welfare efforts in North America, the "Happy Neuter Year" campaign will provide $20 neutering surgeries for male cats during the month of January.

Spaying and neutering is one of the most effective ways to reduce the homeless pet population and is safe for kittens as young as eight to 10 weeks old, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association.

This special $20 rate is even less than the organization's normal low-cost price and is available to all. Pet parents who wish to take advantage of this offer must mention the "Happy Neuter Year" campaign when they schedule their appointment. This campaign is based on availability.

MRFRS's Catmobile will provide 200 "Happy Neuter Year" sterilizations for $20 in January. Please visit www.catmobile.org or call 978-465-1940 for more information or to schedule an appointment.

PetSmart Charities' "Happy Neuter Year" campaign provides more than $733,180 to spay/neuter clinics to fund affordable, high-quality spay and neuter surgeries for more than 20,650 male dogs and cats across the nation during the month of January.
